Test Ban Hopes Raised As K Allows Inspection

Talks Resume In U.S. Tuesday

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and Russia appear closer to agreement on a nuclear test ban than they have been at any time in almost two years.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev has removed a major barrier to serious negotiation by telling President Kennedy he will accept two or three on-site inspections a year in the Soviet Union as part of a system to prevent cheating.

In an exchange of letters released here and in Moscow Friday night, Kennedy told Khrushchev he was "encouraged that you are prepared to accept the principle of on-site inspections."

The state department said the United States now hopes discussions on the long deadlocked test-ban issue "can be continued to a successful conclusion." Whether it does depends on whether Khrushchev is willing to increase the number of on-site inspections. The U.S. is asking for eight or 10.

Representatives of the three nuclear power will reopen negotiations in a meeting here Tuesday.

The Kennedy-Khrushchev exchange covers three letters—one from Khrushchev Dec. 19, Kennedy's reply of Dec. 28, and a second Khrushchev message Jan. 7.

COULD BE SERIOUS

Officials here believe there is a strong possibility Khrushchev is reconsidering his relations with the West in the light of his split with Communist China. If this is so, it could mean he is seriously serious about putting an end to nuclear tests and would be prepared to make additional concessions for that purpose.

At the United Nations, diplomats saw encouraging progress in Khrushchev's move.

In Britain, a foreign office spokesman said: "This is obviously an important development, since in particular it accepts the principle of on-site inspections. But, as President Kennedy's answer shows, there are many problems still to be solved."

By Invitation Or Compulsory?

GENEVA (AP)—Diplomats in Geneva noted today that Premier Khrushchev's nuclear test letter to President Kennedy made no mention of a key point—whether the test ban inspections the Soviet leader accepts would be compulsory or by invitation.

These diplomats said the difference had emerged in talks here as the crux of the inspection problem.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin had maintained that his government would accept inspection by invitation, retaining the right to say if and when it could take place. The United States and Britain insisted that inspection must be compulsory.

Diplomats noted that Premier Khrushchev had agreed to the principle of international inspection several times in the last few years.

In 1960 the Soviets offered the West the right to three annual inspections on its own soil, but withdrew the offer in November, 1961 after they started a massive series of atmospheric nuclear tests.

In revived talks last year, neutralist countries proposed the compromise idea of invitational inspection and Russia immediately accepted this as the sole basis of negotiation.

The West has insisted that at least eight inspections would be necessary to police a test ban and guard against Soviet cheating. But the feeling in Geneva is that the West might settle for less than eight provided they are obligatory. Khrushchev has offered three, but it remains to be seen whether they are invitational.

Conservative Association passed its pro-nuclear resolution and held off later attempts to reverse the stand.

In other business, the convention shelved a proposal, in face of strong Quebec opposition, for a $10,000,000 federal student aid fund and endorsed a resolution calling for commercial development of national parks.

In the dying minutes of the three-day meeting delegates also endorsed a report of the social justice committee which suggested a possible old age pension boost for older age groups. The pension now is $55 a month for everyone aged 70 and over. The convention voted down a proposal to increase to $3,000 and $1,500 the basic personal income tax exemptions for married and single taxpayers—a 50-per-cent increase.

Adenauer Backs Britain

PARIS (UPI)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer sought today to save the Brussels Common Market talks from breakdown and to reach a compromise that would enable Great Britain to become a full member of the six-nation group.

Adenauer conferred privately for two-and-a-half hours with French President Charles de Gaulle at the Elysee Palace.

They met just one week after de Gaulle at his news conference announced publicly his opposition to Britain joining the Common Market.

'SOVEREIGN'

West Germany press chief Karl-Guenther von Hase said after the meeting that de Gaulle's decision "was a sovereign decision for which we were not responsible."

He added "The German government adheres to the view that full British membership of the Common Market is desirable. It believes a compromise can be worked out in accordance with the Rome Treaty."

The Rome Treaty of March 25, 1957, established the six-nation European Common Market.

The German spokesman insisted there was no direct connection between the Brussels crisis and the present de Gaulle-Adenauer talks, which he emphasized were arranged long ago.

Hase said the main purpose of Adenauer's meeting with de Gaulle is not to discuss the Common Market crisis but to prepare and sign a number of documents which will cement a close new alliance between the two former enemy nations.

Hase said it was not certain whether these would be in the form of protocols or a joint declaration. They will provide for close co-operation in the political, economic, defence and cultural fields.

Police know the names of the four missing persons. They presume the three bodies found so far are of the missing four. But they don't know which body is which.

The bodies are charred almost beyond recognition. It appears, however, that all were men. The relatives of two of the missing persons know they are missing.

The relatives of the other missing people have not yet been contacted. Police refused to say if the fourth person, whose body has not yet been found, is a man or woman.

The name of the missing have not been released.

JOBLESS INSURANCE CHANGES PLANNED—PM

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will bring in legislation to amend the Unemployment Insurance and Railway Acts, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today in the Commons.

He said the legislation will be based on the recommendations of the Gill commission, in the case of the Unemployment Insurance Act, and on the recommendations of the MacPherson royal commission on transportation in regard to the Railway Act.

Mr. Diefenbaker also said the government wants to introduce a budget earlier than usual and that it proposes that a debate on external affairs and defence policies be held this Thursday and Friday.

This debate would be the first on these subjects at the current session of Parliament which began Sept. 27 and resumed today after an adjournment which began Dec. 20.

FOURTH BODY SOUGHT

Death Toll 3 In Hotel Fire

RCMP today began job of identifying three charred bodies found in the ashes of the Willows Hotel in Campbell River after Saturday's disastrous fire.

And at the same time other officers are digging in the ruins of the waterfront hotel to find a fourth body that may be there.

The police don't know yet exactly how many people were in the 56-year-old frame structure when it was razed. At first they thought eight guests might have been trapped in the fire.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Nor do they know the cause of the fire although it seems likely that it was caused by a cigarette.

DEMAND by President Nkrumah of Ghana that the UN put President Moise Tshombe of Katanga under arrest has been rejected by Secretary-General U Thant, it was disclosed at United Nations today.

Nkrumah said Tshombe should be held on suspicion of having murdered Patrice Lumumba, first premier of the Congo.

Informants said that one basis on which the proposal rests is that success in the East-West struggle is not to be achieved merely by piling up nuclear arms, either defensive or offensive ones.

It was argued that Canada's historical role has been in supporting the UN, helping less-developed countries, breaking down trade barriers and providing the conventional defence forces for which her manpower, wealth and industrial capacity suit her.

In the light of the Conservative convention's decision on the nuclear question, exponents of this policy now are pressing the government to adopt it, partly as an alternative to having the nuclear issue hanging over the government's head at a time when it is outnumbered politically in the Commons.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker opposed the suggestion that the government give conditional acceptance to nuclear arms.

SEAMAN RESCUED

Crewman of the Lebanese freighter Alforis was brought ashore in breeches buoy Sunday after 4,000-ton ship ran aground in blizzard at

Britain Buried Deeper By Icy Winds, Snow

LONDON (CP)—Freezing winds and snow whipped across Britain today, burying the shivering country deeper in one of its worst winters in recorded history.

After almost a month of blizzards, record cold and searching winds, the nation was running short of fuel and electric power. Its railroads were struggling and its road network was in chaos.

More than 100 major highways in 86 of Britain's 86 counties were blocked by snowdrifts and treacherous ice.

Weathermen held out no hope of an early end to the freeze.

The Thames River froze bank to bank at Kingston. It was the first time since 1895 that the river has frozen so far downstream.

THREE FEARED DEAD

Searchers looked for three men feared dead beneath avalanches in the Pennine Hills of northern England.

Snow and ice on runways forced British European airlines to cancel 44 flights out of London Airport Sunday. Trains between London and the suburbs ran hours late.

On the Continent, ice-breakers were smashing their way to isolated islands in Scandinavia, and troops were called out to aid isolated villages in Austria and Holland today.

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—A Nationalist Chinese naval patrol was believed to have sunk a Chinese Red gunboat today in the first sea battle in the Formosa Strait in more than a year, the national defence ministry reported tonight.

Guerrillas Killed

SAIGON (AP)—The South Viet Nam government claimed today that its forces killed 51 Viet Cong guerrillas and captured two in operations over the weekend. Government losses were put at nine killed, 12 missing and 19 wounded. (See also page 5)

Charged in Killings

MONTREAL (CP)—Three men were arraigned in Montreal today on charges of capital murder arising from the machine-gun slaying of two policemen during a bank holdup in suburban St. Laurent last month. Charged are Jean-Paul Fournel, 39; George Marcotte, 34; and Jules Reeves, 29.

Bennett Plans To See Queen

Premier Bennett will go with Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes to meet the Queen in Vancouver Jan. 31.

The Queen and Prince Philip will stop over at the airport for an hour while the aircraft taking them from London to Australia is refuelled.

A Government House spokesman said today it is possible the royal couple may leave the plane if there is a large crowd and fine weather.

Trekking Sons Reach Vancouver Impasse

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Doukhobor problem in Vancouver reached an impasse during the weekend.

A delegation of Sons of Freedom members issued a statement that they would stay in the city until Attorney-General Robert Bonner talks with them.

Attorney-General Bonner issued a statement saying in effect—"that's a good idea—stay right there." But he wouldn't talk with them.

The Sons have been scattered all over town since arriving here last Wednesday from Hope, B.C., on their trek which began 400 miles to the east in the Kootenay valley Sept. 2.

Mayor Bill Rathie said recently he wants them to leave "and the sooner the better."

But Sunday the Sons of Freedom delegation stated they would remain until Mr. Bonner speaks to them.

Mr. Bonner said it would be wise if the Doukhobors did stay because "it's the best place for them to begin their integration—in the midst of a large Canadian community."

If they locate, they become residents eligible for social welfare cheques.

"I am normally delighted to meet people," the attorney-general said.

"But I have nothing to say to these people."

STUCK IN THE STOCKS at the Roundabout traffic circle Sunday morning was prospective bridegroom Charlie Sallis. His plight went unnoticed for more than an hour as hundreds of cars passed him by. Charlie was the victim of pranksters at a stag party. He will marry fiancée Barbara Roberts next weekend.

Because of an order forbidding employees aboard B.C. government ferries to wear their uniforms ashore, several ferry stewardesses are reported to have gone home one night wearing only undies under their overcoats.

"They couldn't do anything else," said one of the crew. "They had been in the habit of leaving their day dresses at home and returning to duty in uniforms. So what could they do if they had to leave their uniforms on board?"

One of Canada's most distinguished newspaper publishers makes two speaking appearances in Victoria tomorrow. At noon, Charles H. Peters of The Montreal Gazette speaks to Kiwanis. In the evening, he addresses the McGill Graduate Society, of which he is president, and which provides the raison d'être of his visit. He will tell his audience "What's Happening in Quebec."

Peters is a first-class speaker. His newspaper dates back to 1776 and has the distinction of having been founded by Benjamin Franklin.

Happily, Peters' visit coincides with a time when a former Victoria boy, Dr. Roche Robertson, has just been installed as principal of "Old McGill."

"What is the name of that old red-brick church behind your parliament?" a Seattle woman asked one of the commissioners at the Legislative Buildings.

"Church?" he exclaimed. "That's no church, Madame—it's where you go to get your driver's licence!"

Another visitor—a young man from Vancouver—examined the portraits of premiers in the rotunda outside the legislative chamber and remarked that they were a "tough-looking lot."

"Most of them look as if they wouldn't care much for opposition," he said after a cursory examination of the portraits of W. A. C. Bennett, T. D. Pattullo, Byron Johnson, Sir Richard McBride and "Honest" John Oliver.

New resident of Victoria, now living at 3516 Richmond, is Rev. Grant A. Butler, minister-at-large for the Unitarian Universalist Association.

Mr. Butler is here to help Unitarian Fellowship of Victoria enlarge its membership. He reports that some 70 families, including 110 adults, have joined since the movement started here.

We never dreamt there were so many James W. Clarks in Victoria, and they all object to having their name bandied about as if they were delinquents.

Off to Ottawa next Sunday goes Capt. Victor Browne, chief of staff to the flag officer, Pacific Coast, Royal Canadian Navy. He will attend an Emergency Measures Organization federal orientation course next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

"It will deal with various aspects of federal, provincial and municipal planning for civil emergencies," an RCN spokesman said.

Mixed Assembly Pays Last Respects to Joe

Men and women of many types—some shabby, some expensively tailored—paid their last respects to Victoria character Joe North in Hayward's funeral home Saturday afternoon.

It was perhaps the strangest assembly seen at a funeral service. All had been friends or acquaintances of 85-year-old Joe North at some time or another during his stormy career as police commissioner, publisher, vitriolic philosopher and worker for charitable causes.

"TRULY GREAT"

"There'll never be another like him," said 84-year-old William Laming, 228 Memorial Crescent. "Joe was really and truly great—a man who

Boys Grab Spotlight In Sabots

Two 11-year-olds stole the limelight when the Royal Victoria Yacht Club and the Esquimalt Squadron of the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association raced off a two-day series this weekend in RVYC's waters at Cadboro Bay.

Louis Anstey and Chris Sanderson, both of the host club, each placed first in the two Sabot series they raced.

Humphrey Golby, chairman of the frostbite committee for RVYC, described the two-day event as "a nip and tuck fight."

RVYC won the series with a total of 78½ points against the visitors' 72½.

After the first three races sailed on Saturday, the navy was ahead by 12½ points, having won two out of the three events.

THREE WINS

Sunday's three races were all won by the host club. Other winners for RVYC were Ned Ashe, Humphrey Golby, Gillian Coombs, Sid Halls and George Dufour.

RCNSA's three top sailors were Bill Quinn, Howard Davis and Rudy Kermhse.

Arn Stevens and Bob Seddon were winners of a Davidson series for RCNSA sailors. Winners of a series for RVYC Sabot owners were Peter Young and Robin Boyd.

Team captains for RVYC were Sybil Lee, George Dufour and Theo de la Mare. Llew Seddon skipped the RCNSA's Davidson team, and Len Quinn was captain of the navy's Sabot crew.

The navy gets a chance to reverse its defeat when both clubs meet at a return series, to be held at the RCNSA's quarters on February 9 and 10.

Said Mrs. Polly Perepelkin: "We do not like people to stare at us and laugh at us, but if they must, they must. We came here to meet the public. It's not a publicity stunt."

Mrs. Laura Arishenkoff said: "We came here so that (Attorney-General) Bonner would gather with us and our spiritual leader, Stefan Sorokin, to solve our problem."

Sorokin is in Uruguay.

Mrs. Fanny Storgoff told reporters that the Doukhobors are angered by Joe's statements: "He talks too much."

out about 50 fires in that hotel over the last 20 years. Most of them were caused by people smoking in bed."

The men who died in the fire were cut off from a fire escape by smoke and flames. One guest who escaped, Curtis Bennett of Burnaby, said the smoke was too thick for most people to make their way down the stairs to fire escapes.

Mr. Bennett said he knew he couldn't make it down the hall and decided to go out the window. He was making a rope from bed sheets when two loggers "burst into the room."

"There's no time to bother with that," they said. "So we all climbed out the window and just dropped."

RCMP said the catastrophe would have been much worse if a strong wind had been blowing. As it was the hotel burned down completely within an hour.

What saved many people was that Herman Quockaister of 1526 Pandora in Victoria, staying at the Willows up-Island fishing, returned to the hotel about 3 a.m.

ROOM 61

He went upstairs to the second floor. He gave the alarm when he saw smoke in the corridor. Night clerk George Huntley-Jones ran to room 61 which appeared to be the source of the smoke.

When he opened the door, he said, he saw "a wall of flames." He rushed down the hall knocking on doors and then turned in the fire alarm.

Mr. Quockaister stayed upstairs trying to waken guests until he was driven back by fire and smoke.

None were any more than a few night clothes. There were no very young or very old persons staying at the hotel.

Appeal Opens On Illegal Entry Case

The attorney-general of Canada today challenged the acquittal of a man who was charged with helping Chinese to gain illegal entry into Canada.

The case opened in B.C. Appeal Court here this afternoon, although it was originally set down for hearing next Friday. S. A. Levis, for the attorney-general, is appealing the judgment of Magistrate Gordon Scott in Vancouver on Aug. 24 last when he acquitted Grant Oliver Ellergott on charges of "conspiring to procure by unlawful means the admission of Chinese to Canada."

G. A. McFarlane is appearing for the acquitted man.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tom Gooderham, regional director of the Canadian Labor Congress Sunday charged that the Teamsters Union is a "disgrace to the labor movement in B.C." because it is attempting to deprive employees of the right to belong to another union.

His statement followed another round in the long battle between the Teamsters Union and the rival Vancouver and District Taxicab Drivers and Dispatchers Union, which was formed under CLC charter last April.

VOTING

Both want certification as bargaining agent for 450 to 500 taxi drivers, owner-operators and dispatchers in Vancouver's taxi business.

The men have been voting on whether the teamsters or the VDTDDU would represent them and the Teamsters questioned before the Labor Relations Board the right of some men to vote.

Mr. Gooderham said the action by the teamsters will delay counting of the votes and added:

"This is very feeble. It is evidence of the dog in the manger attitude of the teamsters. The teamsters are a disgrace to the labor movement in B.C. because they are depriving employees of belonging to another union."

ROYAL COMMISSION ON PILOTAGE PUBLIC HEARINGS

Public hearings will be held in the province of British Columbia in the following cities on the dates and at the places indicated:

Vancouver—Beginning March 11, 1963—Court of Canadian Citizenship Federal Bldg., 255 Granville St., 10:00 a.m.

Prince Rupert—Beginning March 18, 1963—City Hall (Council Chambers), 10:00 a.m.

New Westminster—Beginning March 25, 1963—Court House Annex, 615 Clarkson St., 10:00 a.m.

Briefs are invited from organizations, associations and individuals wishing to submit information and proposals relating to marine pilotage in British Columbia.

The Commission has been asked to enquire into and report upon the problems relating to marine pilotage in Canada and to recommend the changes, if any, that should be made in the pilotage system now prevailing, having regard to safety of navigation, development of shipping and commerce, the interest of pilots, shipowners, masters and the public generally. In particular the terms of reference of the Commission include:

(a) the extent and nature of marine pilotage requirements, including compulsory pilotage, compulsory payment of pilotage dues and the granting of exemptions;

(b) the duties, responsibilities and status of marine pilots; and

(c) the adequacy of the organizational structure provided in the Canada Shipping Act for the administration, regulation and financing of pilotage, taking into consideration such factors as the provision of pilotage services, the determination, collection and disposal of pilotage dues, and the entry into service, technical standards, conduct, income, welfare and pension arrangements of pilots.

Submissions (11 copies) should be in writing and should reach the Secretary of the Royal Commission not later than March 1, 1963. The Commission's hearings will be devoted to a review of the conclusions contained in the submissions, and to discussion and argument.

Copies of the Commission's terms of reference and of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, may be obtained by writing to the undersigned.

Kennedy Lauds Canadian Price Stability

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy estimated today Canada achieved the best record of price stability among all major industrial countries and that the United States is in second place in ability to crack an inflation psychosis.

Opening a massive campaign for lower income taxes, Kennedy told Congress in his annual economic message the United States ended 1962 with records in personal incomes, wages and corporate profits but these weren't enough to overcome heavy unemployment and a lack of "maximum purchasing power" in the hands of U.S. consumers.

Urging legislators to push through his proposed tax cuts to bolster the economy, the president argued the United States should have no fear of inflation. With the single exception of Canada, the United States last year had the best record of price stability in all the industrialized world.

Rather than give rise to inflation, lower taxes would contribute to price stability by increasing industrial productivity and by stimulating cost-cutting investment, Kennedy said. Prices had remained essentially stable for the last five years and this "has broken the inflationary psychology and eased the task of assuring continued stability."

As long as wage boosts remain within the bounds of increased productivity and as long as management's push for higher profits through higher prices is restrained, "the outlook for stable prices is excellent," Kennedy said.

Unemployment Rate Down

The U.S. unemployment rate had dropped to 5.6 per cent in 1962 from 6.7 per cent in 1961 but this still meant 4,000,000 workers were unemployed. U.S. production of goods and services had increased by some seven per cent last year but Kennedy estimated the increase this year would be only a modest 4.5 per cent, pushing the gross national product in 1963 to $578,000,000,000.

The president conceded that his requested tax cuts, in personal and corporate incomes, would mean a large budget deficit but there is a difference, he suggested, "between deficits born of waste and weakness and deficits incurred as we build for our future strength." These tax cuts would be an investment in future prosperity, he said.

In his tax message to be presented later this week, Kennedy will ask that the cuts, to start July 1, be spread over a three-year period, to reduce the present individual tax range from 20 to 91 per cent to a new lower range of 14 to 65 per cent. The individual rate cut in calendar 1963, if Congress approved, would amount to some $3,000,000,000.

Since Americans generally spend all their disposable income except six or eight per cent, Kennedy estimated the U.S. consumer market would expand by more than $7,000,000,000 if the total consumer tax load is reduced by $8,000,000,000. He proposes also to reduce corporation income tax to 47 per cent from 52, in stages. For small businesses, the initial stage of the cut, effective Jan. 1, 1963, would reduce the rate on the first $25,000 of corporation income to 22 per cent from 30.

Turning to international problems, the president said the U.S. international payments deficit was reduced last year to $2,000,000,000 from $2,500,000,000 in 1961 "but we cannot relax our efforts to reduce the payments deficit still further."

American price stability was working in the American favor. Wholesale prices had remained unchanged since 1959, while those in every major competing country except Canada had risen appreciably.

Commons Back in Session: How Long Will It Last?

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Establishment of a national economic advisory board was to be the government's first piece of parliamentary business as the House of Commons resumed its session today.

The session, which started last Sept. 27, adjourned for a Christmas-New Year's recess on Dec. 20. How long it will continue depends on the government being able to continue winning support of sufficient opposition MPs to avoid defeat on a non-confidence motion or its decision to call a new general election on its own volition.

Standing of parties in the Commons is: Progressive Conservative 116, Liberal 99, Social Credit 30, and New Democratic Party 19. There is one vacancy.

Intention to establish the national economic advisory board was announced in the Speech from the Throne last September. The proposal won qualified support of opposition groups and a move may be made to connect the new board with the existing national productivity council as a government concession to some criticism that the two boards may cover much the same ground.

MAY DEBATE ARMS

Early in the resumed session, the government must provide for debate on a non-confidence motion on a subject of the opposition's choice. This may come a week today and may be the first occasion on which the Commons can get its teeth into the current issue of acceptance of nuclear arms for Canadian forces.

In its early stages, the Commons must also face a crisis in government spending authority. Since the start of the current fiscal year last April 1, the House has not given final approval to a single appropriation. The government has been running on month-by-month interim approval of its spending plans.

By refusing any further interim votes, the opposition could force a new general election by bringing government spending to a standstill. The Liberals are anxious for an election soon, but a compromise may be reached to pass the current year's appropriations quickly, before the year runs out in 10 weeks, and concentrate on the new year's appropriations.

Finance Minister Nowlan is expected to introduce the new year's spending estimates soon, as well as bring down a budget embodying new tax policy. He has promised that the budget will be introduced earlier this year than usual.

Mr. Cox said he had no trouble on the way to Cuba, spending three hours in Mexico City.

But "these stooges of the U.S. were taking pictures as we got off the plane—they did not know we could see them from behind boxes and things."

He suggested that the United States government must be putting pressure on the Mexican government to watch all passengers going to and coming from Cuba.

Mr. Cox was in Cuba from Jan. 2 to Friday. All his expenses were paid by the Cuban government. He went as a member of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, not as a member of the legislature for Burnaby, a constituency he has represented since 1957.

Mr. Cox said his critics should mind their own business. He said what he did with his own time was his own business.

He received support from an unexpected source. Federal Works Minister Fulton, seeking leadership of the B.C. Progressive Conservative party, said in a recent interview he saw nothing wrong, on general principle, with elected representatives visiting other countries at those countries' expense. What they said when they returned was their own responsibility.

COX RETURNS FROM CUBA

MLA 'Mistreated' by Mexicans

VANCOUVER (CP)—A New Democratic Party member of the British Columbia legislature said Sunday Mexican officials kept him and others for hours without food and water in airport rooms after they arrived from Cuba.

"This was at international airport in Mexico City and they had absolutely no right to intimidate us," said Cedric Cox, MLA for neighboring Burnaby, in an interview.

"Apparently it is a crime to go to Cuba."

He said he will protest the Mexican government's intimidation of Canadian citizens to the external affairs department.

Mr. Cox, who stirred a storm within his own party when he accepted an invitation from the Cuban government to visit the country at its expense, said he was photographed by Mexican officials going and coming. He arrived here Saturday.

He said when he and others, including 11 Canadians, got off the plane from Havana at 1:30 p.m. Friday their baggage, plane tickets and passports were seized and they were kept in a room until 5 p.m. without food or water.

He and others called their respective embassies. The Canadian embassy said it would do its best to see that they got food. Shortly afterwards, presumably because of pressure from several embassies, the group was permitted to go to the airport restaurant for a meal.

Then they were put in a room with six policemen, again without food or water. At about 11 p.m. Canadian Pacific Airlines passengers were permitted to go for a meal paid for by the airline and he boarded a plane shortly before midnight for Toronto.

He said he had to take a different plane than the one he planned to take to Vancouver because Mexican officials gave him 24 hours to get out of the country.

He said he had no trouble on the way to Cuba, spending three hours in Mexico City.

But "these stooges of the U.S. were taking pictures as we got off the plane—they did not know we could see them from behind boxes and things."

PEKING (Reuters) — Communist China and Nepal have signed a formal agreement settling the position of their common border—but it is not yet clear who "owns" 29,000-foot Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain.

An agreement signed Sunday as an addition to the 1961 boundary treaty establishes the exact position of 79 permanent boundary markers set up last year.

Another Step to Higher Status

VICTORIA COLLEGE HAS moved further along the road to its expanded future with the formal opening of the new Clearihue building at Gordon Head and a pledge from Premier Bennett of legislation at this session to grant it independent university status.

Certainly the accommodation in the new building was needed and more is required just as urgently. Even while dignitaries were paying tribute to Judge J. B. Clearihue, in whose honor and in recognition of whose untiring dedication to the College the unit was named, classes were in progress in upper rooms.

The premier, without specifying the amount, announced that a capital grant would be given to the College this year, in addition to existing matching grants. And he made clear his opinion that the time had come for two universities in British Columbia—one in Victoria, the other in Vancouver—each with its own personality.

This conforms to the widespread viewpoint that Victoria's status as a university centre should be extended.

Mr. Bennett has called, very properly, for continued co-operation between the two institutions, saying that "competition should exist in seeking higher standards, not between faculties."

This is an ideal to which all friends of higher education in the province will subscribe. But there remains the thorny question of money. University education comes high. Basically the operating costs must be provided by the people of British Columbia through government payments.

How is competition for as much as possible of the available funds to be kept short of the point where it could be mutually injurious to the two universities?

Perhaps the answer lies in the creation of some supra board of governors—representative of the province as a whole and divorced from party politics—who could bring a judicious, unbiased judgment to the apportionment of funds.

It would be unfortunate in the extreme if two universities which, in common with probably all universities in the world can use all the money they can get, were to be placed in a position where one could be played off against the other to the detriment of both.

No Political Interference

IN THE GENERAL GRATIFICATION of citizens at news of Victoria College's "coming of age," a certain unease has been expressed by thoughtful students of higher education at the extent to which politics has been imposed on recent decisions.

It is quite clear that the local institution has placed itself in the hands of Premier Bennett. It was he who suggested the name "University of Victoria," recommended Gordon Head as the best site and set the target for the building campaign. Now he has told the University that he wants Judge Joseph B. Clearihue as first Chancellor.

Mr. Bennett has over-stepped the mark. Chancellors are not named by politicians; they are traditionally elected by Convocation, which is to say by faculty, alumni and degree-holders no matter what their age or place of residence.

This matter came to the fore at the University of B.C. two years ago, when retiring president Dr. Norman MacKenzie advised alumni that his choice for Chancellor was Dr. Phyllis Ross. A number of interested groups felt that this decision was not the prerogative of a University president, and to establish the principle of an election nominated Mrs. Henry Angus. Thus Convocation's rights were protected.

Judge Clearihue is the obvious choice for a first Chancellor of the University of Victoria, having contributed so mightily to its creation. But it seems imperative, following on the Premier's gaffe, that Victoria alumni should now bring forth another nominee so that the principle of an election may be established at the outset. This person, whoever he—or she—may be, would doubtless assume the role of a sacrificial lamb but would at least have the satisfaction of upholding an honorable and democratic academic tradition.

Universities, like newspapers, churches and hospitals, go on and on, for centuries. Politicians come and go. A university, to be effective, must always be free, and particularly so from those who control its finances.

Into the Wings

THE ANNOUNCED RETIREMENT of the Dean of Canterbury, to take effect next May, will bring to an end the official career of one of the most controversial holders of the ancient office.

Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the so-called Red Dean, leaves voluntarily at the call of his 88 years. If he has been one of the most criticized figures to be appointed Dean of Canterbury, he has also been one of the most active. But his persistent inability to see anything wrong with Communism—either Russian or Chinese—has earned him distrust and vilification seldom directed at a high Anglican official.

Less well known than his championship of Communism, which does not appear to have lessened his belief in Christianity despite the obvious conflict of religion and atheism, is Dr. Johnson's earlier admiration for the Social Credit theory. He was a supporter of this cause when he was appointed Dean of Manchester in 1924 by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, a fact which the Manchester Guardian Weekly says "suggests that his judgment was likely to be erratic outside his professional field."

His record in Manchester, however, was of a nature to make him a logical choice for the Canterbury post, to which MacDonald appointed him in 1931. Oddly enough, it was a Soviet refusal to permit him to visit Russia that piqued his curiosity and study and led eventually to a credulous acceptance of almost all things Communist. On this basis he was a welcome visitor to Communist lands—he returned from a visit to China to announce his conviction that the United States had used germ warfare against the Chinese.

Although Dr. Johnson may be credited with removing some of the British public's belief that everything Communist must therefore be evil, it is not likely that he was any more successful in promulgating Christianity on the other side of the Iron Curtain than he was in securing adherents to Communism on this side. Again to quote the Guardian Weekly: "He annoyed far more people than he persuaded."

But an inherent British generosity regarding an individual's personal beliefs saved Dr. Johnson from persecution. He leaves the limelight of church officialdom now by his own choice, accompanied not by catcalls from his fellow-countrymen but certainly by enormous sighs of relief.

Without An Official Plan

RED CHINA'S SECOND FIVE-year plan has ended but a third has not been announced. Because of the disastrous failure of the plan which officially came to a close with 1962 the current endeavor of Peking's officialdom will probably be to hold its own and try to reconstruct the basis for another leap forward. But a five-year plan to hang on to the little you've got would hardly provide an incentive for the Chinese people. As a slogan it seems to lack appeal.

Much of the failure of the last plan was blamed on the weather and resulting poor crops. There is truth in the claim. But it entirely overlooks the decrease in production due to disenchantment of farm workers who were regimented into communes and placed on rations at a bare survival level.

The agriculture failure had its repercussions on the industrial plan. In addition the lauded do-it-yourself steel production program flopped, many factories were operating at only a fraction of capacity, and industrial workers were being sent back to the land to try to raise the food output.

There is thus much to be done in establishing a base for Chinese progress in production. Help from Russia has dwindled, and scarce foreign currency has been expended on food imports. Before the country can gather itself for another push forward some careful reassessments will be necessary—particularly in the area of statistics which in many cases seem to have been manufactured to order rather than reflecting facts of production and capacity.

There remains, too, the factor of willingness on the part of the population. How much of propaganda, regimentation, meagre rations and disappointment can people stand before they react against bureaucracy?

Foundling on the Step.

TO SHAKE THE MOOD

Getting All Choked Up Over a New Tie

By B. A. TOBIN

ONE of the standard theories about women's moods is that any woman can be roused from a fit of the blues by buying a new hat.

Whether or not this is actually true in practice, it apparently is firmly believed by all fashion writers, hinters for housewives, charm advisers and similar women's page seersseers. While some of them may have practical knowledge on which to base their belief, they all seem to forget the old law of physics: that every action has an equal and opposite reaction.

Thus the elation felt by a wife who buys a new hat to bolster her morale is equalled exactly by the dejection of her husband who must pay for it. There has been no net gain in morale as far as the world supply is concerned.

There is, too, a rather morbid belief in some quarters that the gimmick is used both ways. A woman may be heard to say, "I feel terrible. I think I'll go and buy a hat." But other women may be heard to say, "I'm dull and without feeling. I think I'll go and buy a hat." Or, to finish out the scale, a woman may be heard to say, "I feel wonderful today. I think I'll go and buy a hat." But writers don't seem to play up the last two items so often.

So deep-rooted is the pick-me-up tradition in regard to women's hats, that it appears at last to have spilled over onto the men's pages. An Ontario paper, in a recent issue, carries a column of advice to male readers, written by a male fashion director. And what is the first important item taken up? It is a paragraph telling men to follow the example of their wives.

"When you're feeling low and can't shake the mood, hasten to the nearest store and buy a new tie. Not just any tie, but a special tie, an elegant tie. Put it on right then and there, add a smile, and see if the world doesn't smile with you."

Yipes! Or should we say: Graciously! Obviously this advice has two strikes against it—right from the start. First, the world isn't going to be satisfied with merely smiling when it finds out the details of the new appearance. It's going to come right out with a coarse belly-laugh that more than likely will defeat the purpose of the whole transaction.

Secondly, unless the new tie can be smuggled onto the wife's charge account, the law of physics will cancel out the morale effect of its elegance. The poor dolt is going to feel worse than ever, and be stuck with that crazy tie to boot.

Next time you see a fellow wearing an elegant tie and a big smile, don't envy him, feel sorry for him. You'll know that underneath the brave front he really feels awful. Deep down, he's low, miserable and really needs a helping hand. Such a hand could, for instance, give that special tie a good hard yank and choke the silly smirk off his face.

Even if it doesn't do him any good this should give you a lift and enable you to face the world with a smile. The world might even smile appreciatively with you if it has happened to be watching.

THE SWORD WORE OUT THE SCABBARD

By MAX FREEDMAN

Voice of Conscience Amid Crash of Arms

THE death of Mr. Hugh Gaitskell, leader of the British Labor party, has done much more than change the balance in British politics; it has robbed many honorable causes of a voice of reason that has often filled the world.

For his friends there will be personal grief at the knowledge that the sword at last has worn out the scabbard. There will be other battles, but his flashing spirit no longer will point the way. Other leaders will come but he will be remembered with affection and with gratitude.

In these last few days we have seen a dramatic example of the way the fortunes of free nations have become entangled. We have all known that in the course of time the political period associated with aged leaders like Adenauer, de Gaulle, Nehru and Chiang Kai-shek must end. Mr. Gaitskell, measured in these terms, was still young and was out of power. We had the right to expect that long years of service awaited him. Now our vigil on the medical bulletins has ended in sadness.

Social Justice

Mr. Gaitskell followed his own path of leadership. It was said of the first great leader of the Labor party, Keir Hardie, that he hated the palace because he remembered the pit. He was almost as eager to tear down the rich as he was to raise up the poor. This passion for social justice, never tumultuous in Ramsay MacDonald, thinned out in the later days to little more than a timid advocacy of tentative reform.

An interlude of pacifism marked the party's history as it followed the brief leadership of George Lansbury, who mistook the mandates of his conscience for the facts of life. The Labor party reached its glory under the guidance of Clement Attlee, whose threadbare personality concealed a mind of surprising power and dexterity.

Poverty never cradled Mr. Gaitskell into socialism nor did trade unionism give him its rewards. He was an intellectual, and the slovenly waste of the British economic system irritated his precise mind even more than the curse of injustice outraged his conscience. For many years he was the respected spokesman of the Labor party in the age of the welfare state. Neither a pioneer nor a prophet, he brought into the British debate an instructed conscience without which public controversy would more easily have fallen into a mere argument over managerial techniques.

Equal Society

He stirred Englishmen to think anew of the perils as well as the hopes of an equal society. In the process he persuaded British socialism to ditch its old dogmas of many ancient dogmas. He was a liberator even more than a leader, for the verdict in national elections went against him.

Inside the Labor party he never lacked rivals and opponents. Aneurin Bevan, who was born, like Lloyd George, with a silver tongue in his cheek, once derided Mr. Gaitskell as a dedicated adding machine. The gibe was a victory of invective over accuracy. Mr. Gaitskell's offense consisted in being far more interested in the rights of Englishmen than in the wrongs of man. It is a small offence and for it his friends need offer no prolonged atonement.

Always in British politics the Liberal or Progressive party has wavered between two distinct groups. Gladstone as Liberal leader had to remember the protests of John Bright and the campaigns of the young Joseph Chamberlain. In a later period, Rosebery suffered under the more imperious spirit of Harcourt, and Asquith bowed to the mercurial genius of Lloyd George.

It is not surprising therefore to find the Labor party, in our day, divided by quarrels and quivering with antagonisms. Mr. Gaitskell managed to compose these disagreements even though he never could end them. His departure has raised many anxious questions about the future of the Labor party.

During the Suez crisis of 1956 Mr. Gaitskell never hesitated to denounce British policy even while British troops were moving into action. This conduct is more consistent with British than with American experience. The tradition here calls for the closing of ranks in an emergency, to be followed by a loud and painful post-mortem when it can do very little good. The British people are no strangers to national unity. But they respect the voice of conscience even amid the crash of arms. Mr. Gaitskell convinced few voters that he was right about Suez. But even his critics honored his independence, and his refusal to be stampeded by organized appeals to national emotion.

As Our Readers See It

Exploded?

One would think that by this time the provincial leader of the Liberal party, Mr. Perrault, would have decided on some more positive action than his searching for dark motives underlying the various government projects now in progress. He seems underwhelmed when his discoveries backfire with a bang, in his face, but goes hopefully forth on another witch-hunting expedition.

Responsible Liberals in this province are by now, we hope, beginning to look askance at these amusing (?) antics at their leader. He is not making any positive contribution to the party cause except to cause embarrassment and annoyance while at the same time proving a source of amusement and ridicule to the government.

Now that his sinister interpretation of "who cut back the Peace dam?" has also been exploded, surely Mr. Perrault will consider taking a well-earned holiday for the time being?

No Guined Pigs

I am writing to you as the secretary manager of the Victoria Branch, and as the executive director of the parent body of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in British Columbia.

Recently a rumor has been reported to me to the effect that the SPCA in Victoria supplied a dog for the purposes of experimentation to one of the medical authorities.

I would like to make it quite clear that this is a complete fabrication. There is no truth in it whatsoever. It is contrary to the principles of our organization to supply animals for purposes of experimentation or vivisection. The constitution of the society reads as follows:

ARTICLE VIII.—(A) ANIMAL RESEARCH: At no time will any animal coming under the jurisdiction of the B.C. SPCA or any branch or sub-branch ever be made available for medical research.

This is invariably complied with by all our branches.

LONDON:

Far More At Stake

By RICHARD PURSER

NEITHER Britain nor the continent will ever be quite the same again following President de Gaulle's press conference last week.

It was an occasion that for once merits the overworked adjective historic, and its impact is immense. It is no less immense for being creeping rather than explosive in nature. Only the few have yet really felt it; for the many, it will take some time to realize what has happened.

For the few—top-level businessmen, scholars, politicians and other interested observers—the impact is softened somewhat because they knew in advance that Gen. de Gaulle's attitude could be summed up by the word "Non," but they could hardly be prepared for the way he said it.

Gen. de Gaulle's style is to preserve an enigmatic front until the moment when he chooses to reveal himself. When he does so, he rehearses his speech carefully. When his medium is a press conference, he makes clear in advance the questions he wants asked, and turns aside any question for which he does not have a set piece prepared.

Gallic Logic

The resulting exposition of his policy, couched in French so perfect that it is a joy to hear for the language itself, combines Churchillian power of expression with precision of detail. When precision of detail does not suit him, he goes off into flights of Gallic logic which seem like revealed truth, however little they correspond to Aristotle's or anyone else's rules of logic.

Accordingly, when he was asked on cue to "define explicitly France's position towards Britain's entry into the Common Market and the political evolution of Europe," de Gaulle replied with what was in effect a lengthy sermon to Britain.

The gist of the lesson was that Britain, if it wishes to join Europe, should become European and stop being British. Recognition of this accounts for the equanimity with which the British man-in-the-street has accepted the new situation. He has felt in his heart all along that Britain is different from "Europe"—a term which to the average man still means "the continent." So he feels de Gaulle has merely stated a fact.

It is the internationalist-minded Britons—again, the top businessmen, the scholars, the politicians, and so on—who are furious with de Gaulle for providing a definition of "Europe" that they who think of themselves as "Europeans" cannot accept. But he has done so, and the question is: What next?

The British government has chosen loftily to ignore Gen. de Gaulle's utterance in public. They will continue, for appearances, the negotiations in Brussels. But behind the scenes they will rely on high-level meetings of two nations at a time, which could even result in a European "summit" before the government must finally declare the European adventure at an end.

Four Questions

As long as Britain perseveres in its quest to join the rest of Europe, which will be until the last possible moment, the following questions may be asked: (1) What, exactly, did Gen. de Gaulle say and mean in his speech? (2) What does it mean to Britain, politically and economically? (3) What does it mean to the rest of Europe, and to Europe in the world? (4) What can Britain do to safeguard its interests by still getting into the Common Market?

If Britain's most strenuous efforts come to failure, and it takes much optimism to see anything else, these questions arise: (1) What alternatives are open to Britain, especially through the Commonwealth? (2) What is the future of a divided Europe, especially vis-a-vis the United States?

This is to combine the multitude of questions that would arise into a small number of catch-alls. The European Economic Community has become one of the most intricate political, economic and, although unwittingly, even military, questions that has ever arisen. Its ramifications are as complex as they are important, and must be explored in their painstaking detail by all concerned.

Far more is at stake than the glory of Gen. de Gaulle, or for that matter the glory of Prime Minister Macmillan.

A Twisted Spine

One of the terrible problems facing many parents is that of the child, usually a girl, who for reasons not yet known starts to get a badly twisted back. Often it looks as if the muscles on one side of the spine had become so weak that the strong ones on the other side were pulling the spine over. The question then arises, "What can be done?" Often, we physicians have done nothing, because we knew that even a big operation might not straighten up the girl and make her happy.

I was just reading an article by Drs. J. William Fielding and Theodore Waugh of the New York Orthopedic Hospital which says that some surgeons put these girls first into a plaster cast, and later operate to fuse several vertebrae. Such fusing can serve to keep at least a part of the spine from getting more and more curved. Some surgeons use a special brace, and later they fuse the vertebrae, some, like Drs. Fielding and Waugh, believe in first fusing some vertebrae and then putting the child's chest into a plaster cast.

In some cases, the spine is fused with the help of two strips of bone taken from one of the bones in the leg. In other cases, the necessary bone is obtained from a "bone bank." When the plaster cast is applied, it is kept on usually for nine months. After three months in bed, the child is allowed to get up and move around. Usually from four to eight vertebrae are fused, and in most cases the work is done in two stages. An operation is deemed advisable if the spinal curve measures over 35 per cent by the Ferguson method.

The two surgeons are frank in saying that the results have not always been satisfactory. The average maximum correction was 45 per cent of the curve as it existed when the child was first seen. Even after the operation, in some cases the child's spine kept curving in. Because of this the surgeons say that the "maintained correction" was 30 per cent of the curve as it was measured before the operations. Two other groups of orthopedists who have tried to keep twisted spines from curving further have reported similarly only partial results.

I was just reading the results of a statistical study of 392 patients with scoliosis, made by three teachers at Stanford Medical School, headed by Dr. Eugene M. Farber.

Scoliosis is a chronic skin disease that attacks many persons; it causes red patches to appear on parts of the body—patches which are covered with tiny white scales. With treatment, perhaps with an ointment plus some radiation—perhaps ultra-violet—the patches can usually be cleared up, but there is a tendency for some of them to come back. Often a skin specialist has to try a number of treatments on an individual before he finds one that will work well. And later, when the patient comes back, he may have to find still another remedy.

It looks as if heredity must play a role in producing the trouble, but the disease can either skip generations or it may produce in some persons an illness different from the one here described. Dr. Farber found one family in which in each of four generations there were two or more persons with scoliosis. He pointed out that in some ways scoliosis resembles diabetes: they both can be made worse by nervous stress, by treatment with corticosteroids, by bacterial infection, by drinking alcoholic liquors and by gaining weight.

Of the 392 patients studied, 67.6 per cent first noted the coming of the skin disease between the ages of 10 and 40 years. There were, however, some patients who did not get the red spots until they were past 70.

I think it hopeful that chemists are now analyzing the uninvolved skin and the diseased skin and are finding abnormalities in the red patches. Out of these studies may come a hint as to what went wrong and how it can be corrected.

HOME GARDEN

Interest Revived in Perennials

At the beginning of this century, perennials were the backbone of average gardens.

One reason was that the wealth of shrubs available to us at moderate prices today have been introduced to gardeners only during the past 50 years, and were expensive items for our parents' generation.

The perennials which formed the bulk of the ornamental garden plantings were herbaceous in character. That is, the stems died down to ground level each fall, and new growth came from the roots in spring. Originally many of these herbaceous perennials were grown as medicinal plants, and came down to us through monastery gardens and the herb plots which formed a part of every large estate and every cottage garden.

Today there is renewed interest in perennials since designers are realizing that they contribute variation in leaf texture, shape and color, quite apart from the same variations in their flowers.

Because of these variations, perennials may be used to round out basic plantings of heavier textured shrubs. Types can be found to suit sun and shade, for high accents and for low tying-in effects.

Fragrance is not too common among the perennials, but certainly is not entirely lacking. If we look among those which have been handed down from the old herb and medicinal gardens, we shall find subtle perfumes to awaken nostalgic memories of half-forgotten gardens belonging to our own childhood.

The fact that almost every genus of perennial has been increased by many new varieties introduced over the years is proof of their popularity. Peonies, delphiniums, phloxes and daylilies are some of the perennials which number in the dozens the new varieties added to their ranks because of their usefulness in average gardens.

VOW Urges Rejection Of A-Arms

TORONTO (CP)—The Voice of Women will ask the Canadian government to re-open negotiations on its obligations in NATO and explicitly reject nuclear arms.

Mrs. Therese Casgrain of Montreal, national president of the VOW made the announcement at a press conference during the organizations council meeting here Sunday.

"We don't know whether Canada is committed to nuclear arms or not but nevertheless negotiations should be reopened, as provided for in Article 12 of the NATO treaty."

The article of the treaty signed in 1949 says individual members may request a review of the treaty 10 years after it was signed, Mrs. Casgrain said. The VOW has not changed its opinion on the nuclear question, and wants the government's rejection of nuclear arms made clear, Mrs. Casgrain said.

SYNOPSIS—Another cold air mass building over northern British Columbia is likely to push southward into the central regions of the province in the next 24 hours bringing snow flurries to the Prince George and Cariboo areas this evening and a marked drop in temperatures from the current mid-twenties readings. Cloudy skies prevail in coastal regions and considerable cloud associated with a weak mid-level disturbance is now spreading from the central into the southern interior. Scattered snow flurries will mark its passage over the interior.

LONDON (AP)—All 25 of today's scheduled games in the third round of the English soccer cup were postponed again because of snowbound pitches—and the pile-up of fixtures became more chaotic than ever.

The round was supposed to have been played Jan. 5. But of 32 games, only seven have been settled so far. Two others were drawn and are waiting to be replayed.

The games scheduled for tonight have been put back to next Saturday—the date originally set aside for the next round. Most teams have missed five or six league games too and there is no sign of pitches returning to normal.

Most English League teams have played no soccer since before Christmas.

PALMER 'OUSTED'

Wedge Gives Casper Edge

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—When the wedge shot on the line in the annual $50,000 Bing Crosby golf classic, Billy Casper has a habit of coming through.

In 1958 he won it by canning a spectacular 140-yard approach shot for an eagle. Casper made a superb wedge shot on the final hole Sunday to again walk off with the $5,300 winner's share.

The wedge shot from 75 yards out on the treacherous 18th hole laid Billy's ball a foot from the pin for a vital par five. It put decided pressure on United States Open champion Jack Nicklaus and South Africa's Gary Player.

Nicklaus found himself with a 30-foot putt to win at 18, missed it and slid six feet past the cup. He missed the six-footer, took a six and finished in a second-place tie with Player, who missed a 12-foot putt he needed to tie Casper.

Casper finished with a two-over-par 74 and had a winning four-round total of 285, three under regulation figures.

TIE FOR SECOND

Five players tied at 286 for second place—Nicklaus, Player, Rosburg, Dave Hill and Art Wall.

Arnold Palmer finished the tournament but found later that he had been disqualified in Saturday's third round because he mislaid a hole.

He hit a provisional ball on the 17th hole Saturday when his tee shot wound up in a tide pool on a flat rock. Tournament officials said it should have been called an unplayable lie with no provisional ball allowed. Palmer's banishment ended a string of 47 tournaments in which he finished in the money.

LEONARD WINS $160

Only Canadian in the money was Vancouver veteran Stan Leonard. He carded a 76 Sunday after rounds of 75-76-71 for a total, 298 and $160.

Al Balding of Toronto, only other Canadian to survive to the final round, scored a 79 to go with his earlier rounds of 78-72-75 for 304.

Eliminated after Saturday's play were Alvie Thompson of Toronto with 74-73-84—231. Al Johnston of Montreal with 80-80-74—234 and George Knudson of Toronto with 71-79-83—233.

In the best-ball competition, Balding and Toronto amateur Wally Crother had a score of 72-68-71—211 after Saturday's round.

John G. Randall, Vancouver amateur, and pro Tom Everham had 71-79-74—224. A pro-am team score of 202 was needed to survive Saturday's cut.

HUNT-HEDLEY UPSET

George Displays Master's Touch

George Lane, who won his first city badminton title in 1935, no longer tests younger rivals in singles competition, but the shuttle still knows he still has a master's touch in doubles duels.

Lane offered the proof again Saturday in the finals of the annual city tournament Saturday at the Racquet Club as he earned a share of three doubles crowns.

The crafty veteran teamed with Eric Hiberson to blast out the major upset of the tourney, winning the men's doubles final with a 15-12, 15-12 triumph over defending champions Ed Hedley and Bob Hunt. In both games, Hunt and Hedley held 11-3 advantages at one time.

Lane also partnered another veteran, Muriel Knott, to retain the mixed doubles title with a 15-9, 15-9 win over Diana Godfrey and Hedley.

Lane was back for the veterans' double final, joining Bob McMurich to beat last year's champs, Reg Hoadley and Jim Wells, 9-15, 15-9.

Hunt, fifth-ranked male player in Canada, had too much power for Roger Lindal in the men's singles final, winning 15-7, 15-5.

Alison Daysmith retained the women's crown with an 11-7, 11-1 victory over Miss Godfrey.

Anne Currie and Jean Massey took the women's doubles crown, whipping Elsie Radford and Miss Daysmith, 15-6, 15-10.

'C'MON... GIT IN THE CUP'

Looking more like a man practicing a punt than a sedentary crooner, Bing Crosby gave out with a spontaneous kick in an effort to influence path of amateur Chase Morsey's putt on ninth hole at Pebble Beach in third round of National Pro-Am. Bing's boot didn't help. Morsey missed putt.

Bakers' Mentor Knows About Fahrenheitz Now

Westminster 60, Victoria 59

By DOUG PEDEN

Fred Colten has his answer and it's better than an even-money bet today that he knows how to spell the name of Bob Fahrenheitz.

In fact, he may be adding it to the New Westminster roster.

Coach Colten was talking about the Inter-city Basketball League in general and his Bakers in particular before New Westminster nipped Haida Chiefs Saturday at Central Junior High School.

Colten, who guided the Bakers to the provincial title last year, believes his club will keep the crown, although they have only a slim chance of beating North Vancouver Harlems in the race for the league title.

"I think we'll win the playoffs," he said. "We can beat Harlems. The basketball won't be the best in the world, but it'll be interesting."

STARTING TO ROLL

"This club isn't the shooting team we had last year by any means. But we're starting to come around. We have three 20-year-olds and one 19-year-old and it takes more than one season to iron out a green club."

"But they are starting to hit and we should be ready for Harlems."

"These Chiefs—they're as good as any club on their home floor. We still have to beat them out for second place or we might not make it to the finals."

Colten was also explaining how two of his guards had Saturday jobs and were unable to make the trip to Victoria.

"I've brought over this kid Fahrenheitz. I'm not sure how you spell it. I want to see what he can do."

Colten said plenty, although he made Colten wait until the waning seconds for his answer.

Bob collected eight points, which isn't exactly an impressive total. But half of the points came on a pair of clutch baskets in the final minute, wiping out a one-point Haida lead and enabling Bakers to squeeze in with a pulsating 60-59 triumph.

Chiefs, who again played some fine basketball, lost out when they couldn't hit foul shots in the closing stages.

League scoring leader Norris Martin, potted only one of four in the second half, and Darrell Lorrimer canned two of six.

Assured of a playoff spot, the Vancouver Puritans were trimmed 68-48 by Harlems Saturday at Vancouver. Chiefs are four points behind Bakers with only a mathematical chance of finishing in a tie for second. The spot that assures an extra home game in the semifinal.

They complete their schedule with two games against the league leaders—Thursday at North Vancouver and Saturday at Central Junior High—while Bakers, wind up with a pair against Puritans.

N.V. Harlems 40 before 2,707 fans, largest crowd of the Pacific Coast Soccer League season. It was a costly defeat for Canadians at Vancouver's Callister Park. They lost scoring ace Normie McLeod six minutes after the start.

McLeod collided with Firefighters' goalie Ken Pears, and was carried from the field on a stretcher. He was taken to hospital with a possible ankle fracture.

The four-goal margin flattered the Firemen, who broke loose for three goals in the final seven minutes.

Cougars Uncover A Scoring Punch

Victoria Cougars have uncovered a potent scoring punch in the Pacific Coast

And coach Johnny Bond hopes it's still there tonight when Cougars entertain New Westminster at Memorial Arena.

Cougars cut loose with a pair of seven-goal wallop to pick up two weekend victories, sending runner-up Nanaimo sprawling to defeat in each case.

At Nanaimo Saturday, Cougars trailed 2-0 after the opening period, then fired a seven-goal burst in the second session, and held on for a 7-6 triumph.

It was easier for the Cats Sunday—after finishing the opening period locked in a 2-2 tie with the Hub City crew, Cougars fired seven straight goals, five in the final period, while goalie Lorne Ferguson was stopping 17 shots without a miss, to walk off with a 9-2 decision.

At New Westminster Sunday, the Royals moved within one game of clinching the league title but had to work to get by Esquimalt Bruins 6-4.

Gary DeForge scored twice for Bruins, who led 2-0 after the first period.

Wayne Anderson and Ray Beech sparked Cougars Sunday. Anderson collected four goals and an assist while Beech picked up four assists.

Buzz Wilson fired two Victoria goals, and John Hansen, Larry Biggs and Bob Holness added single tallies.

Bernie Martin and Bob Cherry counted for Nanaimo.

Harper, Moss Rinks Top Island Playoffs

The signs pointed out the smoothest and fastest road to the Pacific Coast Curling Association finals, but Duncan's Glen Harper still managed to get there despite the fact he detoured over a rougher route.

Harper, 33-year-old former provincial champion, and Don Moss, a 22-year-old Victoria shotmaker, are Vancouver Island's representatives in the Coast final that gets under way in Burnaby next Saturday.

Winners of that regional playoff meet the Interior's representatives in a best-of-three series for the provincial title and the right to advance the Canadian championships at Brandon.

The Moss rink made its big step by winning the "A" event Sunday in the double-draw knockout Island championships.

SEVEN STARTED
Harper's crew won the "B" event in the seven-rink playoff.

Coincidentally, both rinks drew byes in the events they won.

It was a tight squeeze for Harper. The Duncan foursome got the benefit of a 12th-end measure and then picked up the winning point in an extra end Sunday night at Victoria Curling Club.

Harper's extra-end victory, 9-8, stopped Moss from winning both sections and setting up a playoff between Duncan and Nanaimo's Don MacRae.

If curling laymen find that this is starting to sound complicated, they need not worry. It is. It could be complicated further with the declaration that both of Sunday's event finals could have been avoided had Harper taken "the easy route."

SIMPLE, SEE?

Had Harper joined Moss in both finals, further play would not have been necessary. That would have been the easy way. As it was, however, MacRae tossed out the detour sign at Duncan's favorites by scoring a tense 9-6 victory in Saturday's semifinals. Moss had to follow.

The Victoria rink, which includes third Larry (Deacon) Marshall, 47, second Mel McClure, 29, and lead Dr. Kirby Moysiey, 43, clinched its berth Sunday morning. That at the expense of MacRae, 5-3.

Moss and mates compiled an amazing shooting percentage in beating Nanaimo. McClure led the way with a 9-7 period. Marshall had 8-3—a figure he flirted with consistently throughout the two-day affair—while both Moss and Moysiey finished with 79.2 marks.

GAMBLE TO WIN

In the "B" event final, Moss carried Harper right down to the wire... and then some. Trailing 8-7 playing the 12th (last regulation end), Harper gambled to win it all. Instead of playing for an easier takeout-and-stick tying point, Harper chose to try a difficult double on Victoria's two shot rocks. Harper almost made it. However, instead of taking out Victoria's second stone, Harper took out one of his own (lying third) and stopped. It was enough to give Harper the tying point on that all-important measure.

Harper, who was supported by Harvey Hodge, 31, Gary Merritt, 25, and Vern Caspik, 32, stole the winning point on the extra end when Moss' last rock—a soft takeout—just slipped by Duncan's shot stone.

Goals by Norman Wilcox and Ollie Milaneo gave South Van Isle Lions a 2-1 Division II triumph over Majestic Eagles Sunday in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association.

In Sunday's other Division II match, Peter Herold collected five goals to lead Esquimalt Legion to a 5-1 win over Oak Bay Optimists.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Strange things are happening to our strike-bound city that, years from now, will seem incredible.

Mary Martin—invited weeks ago to a big tribute dinner to Dick Rodgers the other night—didn't go. She was sitting home alone, too, unaware she'd been invited.

Last fall, when the invitation arrived, Mary's secretary decided she couldn't go as she'd be in Brazil, on a freighter trip, first time in four years, seeing her estate.

Time passed. A dock strike started. Nobody was going anywhere. Papers weren't telling anybody anything. Dick Halliday, Mary's husband, leaped in to take advantage of the leisurely situation and finish up plans for their show, "Jennifer," set for next fall.

"Maybe it's just as well for us," Halliday says. "We'll fly next week if we have to."

Some of their friends found it hard to understand that they, of all people who knew Dick Rodgers, were not there. What they can't understand is that in this city of non-communication, nobody really knows anything that's going on. We're all squares.

The feud between Merv Griffin and Johnny Carson is a boffin—though neither'll quite admit it. Merv's still angry about Johnny's people cutting his name from an interviewee's lips. Though Johnny put the blame on one of his men, Johnny must have been responsible, according to Merv, who says "Nobody ever cut a name out of a script I did," and pooh-poohs the whole idea that Johnny didn't know about it. He says, shrugging, "They all chickened out. Nobody wants to fight with me."

It's been confirmed by my sources in Paris—Brigitte Bardot isn't fooling, and definitely intends—as of now—to come to New York next month to promote her latest movie which concerns a warrior resting from the war. (He rests with her?). Previously BB's been frightened about the NY reporters and photographers.

Salvador Dali, the character, walked out into 57th Street, and waved down a taxi with much brandishing of his cane—then handed the cabbie a hibition at Doubleday's as he hopped in. . . . Jennifer Jones' son, Robert Walker, who's showing what a good actor he can be in "The Ceremony" which he's making in Spain, playing Laurence Harvey's brother, Walker married to the dancer Ellie Wood—they have a six-months-old baby.

Sammy Cahn, the lyric-magician, long very sick with an ulcer, is out of the hospital—and resting in Palm Springs. . . . Margaret Truman's working five hours a day with her voice coach. . . . Sal Cucinotta of Teddy's changed the name of their kid soft drink from "Shirley Temple" to "the Caroline Kennedy."

And here's Joe Pasternak's famous Hungarian goulash recipe which so many of you have requested:

For six servings: Cut two Spanish onions into small pieces and brown them in butter, oil or margarine. Add two buds of garlic chopped fine. Four beef consommé, either cubes or canned, over this. Cut 4 pounds of chuck roast into ½-inch cubes and simmer it; add salt, pepper, paprika, a little Soga sauce. Cook for 2 hours until it is tender. Slice potatoes French-fry shape and cook in the juicer for about 15 minutes, and let it simmer. Total time required: about 2½ hours.

Mountaineer Killed

EVERETT, Wash. (AP)—Mrs. Flora Green, 43, of Seattle, member of a novice mountain climbing party, slipped on an icy slope Sunday and was killed by her own ice axe. The accident happened on Mount Pilchuck, about 25 miles northeast of here. Snohomish County Coroner Ken Baker said the woman's throat was cut by the axe as she rolled down the slope.

THE WEEKEND WINDUP...

Is Frank Sinatra going to merge with 20th Century-Fox and Darryl Zanuck? That's a possibility, because Frank wants to expand, we hear, in the creativity department. . . . Now David Suskind's making a TV pilot here about a social worker—starring George Scott. . . . The Cafe Society gossip says that the reason a celebrated singer looks so young nowadays is very, very simple: he had a face-lift.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "I bought my wife a 'Do it yourself' book. I was getting tired of doing it."—N. E. Coan, Norfolk, Va.

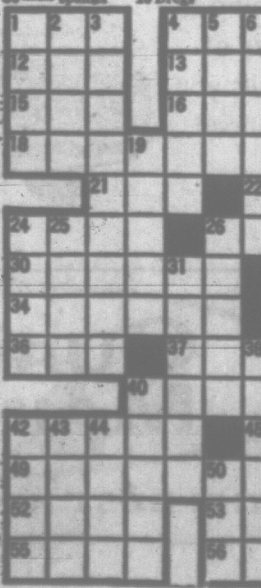

WISH FD SAID THAT: "General de Gaulle made a New Year's resolution. This year he is going to see eye to eye with De Gaulle." (Dublin Opinion.)

Publicity is what people like who claim they dislike it. . . . That's earl, brother.

'Rumble' Over Clothes

LEWISTOWN, Penn. (AP)—A busy shopping centre was turned into an arena for a gang rumble Saturday. Police scattered more than 200 youths amid crowds of shoppers.

The gangs said they fought over relative merits of their clothes. "The conservatives" wear Ivy League-style suits, "the fives" favor flashier clothes.

Don't Trust U.S. Too Much
Ulbricht Tells W. Germans

EAST BERLIN (AP)—Walter Ulbricht, East German Communist leader, today wound up his party's sixth congress with a warning to West Germany not to put too much trust in the United States.

Events in Cuba have shown, he said, that there is a new power in the world: the United States cannot defy — meaning Soviet Russia.

He asked for talks with West Germany "on a basis of equality" with a view to a federal union of the two parts of the country and eventually reunification.

This is an old demand, which has been repeatedly rejected in the West. East Germany's satellite regime rules only one-third as many people as there are in West Germany, and has never held a free election.

Waldemar Schmidt, East Berlin's deputy mayor, announced that the new membership of the party's central committee had been elected unanimously. Who they are will be announced Tuesday.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev was on the platform and Chinese delegate Wu Hsiu-chan in his front-row seat for the speech by Ulbricht.

In Moscow, the party newspaper Pravda published for the first time almost the complete text of Wu's speech to the party congress last Friday attacking Soviet policies.

This was interpreted as an attempt to get across to the people of the Soviet Union for the first time the depth of the rift between Russia and China.

K Boasts
Of Missiles

BERLIN (AP)—Premier Khrushchev boasted Saturday night that although he withdrew 40 Soviet missiles from Cuba, "we have put up 80 or perhaps 120 somewhere else."

He did not say where, but implied that it was inside the Soviet Union. He also boasted that what he called the mighty Soviet club prevented the imperialist American wolf from swallowing Cuba, took several more swipes at the Communist Chinese and predicted that one day all of Germany would live under communism.

Jury Finds
Provocation
In Slaying

LONDON (AP)—A jury today stopped the trial of Laurence Thomas Saunders, 16, and found him not guilty of slaying George I. Brinham, former chairman of Britain's Labor party.

Brinham, a 43-year-old bachelor, was found beaten to death in his apartment Nov. 22.

Judge Sir Gilbert Paull had earlier directed the jury to ignore a murder charge. At the end of the prosecution's evidence on a charge of manslaughter he said there was direct evidence that Brinham had tried to make homosexual advances to the boy.

"I cannot see how any jury properly directed on the evidence can fail to find there was provocation."

Saunders was discharged.

DEATH TOLL
RISES TO 137
IN SINKING

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean police said today 18 more persons are unaccounted for and believed to have drowned in Friday's sinking of a coastal ferry off South Korea's southwestern coast. They said this raised the toll to 137—89 men and 48 women.

There was only one survivor, a male passenger.

Rough weather continued to hamper crews trying to salvage the boat. Eleven bodies have been recovered.

Authorities said most of the victims were believed still in the passenger cabin of the sunken 34-ton Yun-ho.

Flying Sleuths Boost Odds On Survival in Rugged B.C.

By ARTHUR MAYNE
Wilderness British Columbia can still set lethal traps for the careless or unlucky, but the odds in favor of survival are very much better than they used to be.
Credit for this changed condition goes to a super-sleuthing agency called the RCAF search and rescue organization, which from its Pacific area base in Vancouver...

MONTE ROBERTS

Please forgive me if I am inclined to be snarly, irritable, and generally hard to get along with.
These are very difficult days for an addict like me.
I am going through that hardest of all periods, the withdrawal period.
I started a week ago Sunday, thinking that seven days should make all the difference.
But the craving is still with me, the pangs are almost physical. Tapering off doesn't seem to work, and I lack the courage to face a complete break.
What's that?
Good heavens, no.
I am referring to my addiction to televised football.
A week ago Sunday the last (sob) televised football game of the season appeared on the screen.
It was only an all-star game, and I thought at first I would turn it off at the end of the first quarter, to begin accustoming myself to the lack of football.
But at the end of the first quarter, I happened to be in the kitchen, and when I returned to the living room, the second quarter had started. Oh, well, I thought, I can turn it off at halftime.
But at halftime, a neighbor dropped in, complaining bitterly about poor reception on his set, so it wouldn't have been neighborly to turn MY set off, now would it?
Thus my plans for early tapering off were dashed.
On Saturday, I tried again.
I tried to dissipate (is that the right word?) my craving for football by watching (a) golf (b) curling (c) wrestling (d) more golf—on three different channels (e) more wrestling (f) horse racing (g) bowling (h) skiing (i) hockey (j) boxing (k) more—golf (l) more bowling (m) more wrestling.
But it was no use.
Only for brief periods during the hockey game could I forget my loss.
As for Sunday, what could I use as an anodyne for the gnawing at my vitals?
There was nothing in sight but golf, golf and golf (not necessarily in that order), bowling and—horror of horrors—an indoor track meet.
All I could do was stay in bed and cry a lot.
So please forgive me if I am inclined to be snarly. I'll be all right by next August.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

A car reported stolen in the city at 12:35 a.m. Sunday was spotted in Esquimalt 10 minutes later, but its occupants eluded pursuing police.
Three youths were seen taking the 1951 sedan belonging to Walter Ngai, from in front of his home at 2567 Prior.
Esquimalt police spotted the car parked at Wilson west of Henry. Three occupants of the car fled when police approached, but escaped.
A 16-year-old Vancouver basketball player is reported in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today, following a two-car crash in which he was injured Saturday.
Eric Brynjolfsson was a passenger in one of two cars involved in the crash at Lampton and Ellice about 9 a.m.
He had come to Victoria to play in a basketball game.
Eight-year-old Karen Stewart, 709 Connaught, who was hurt in the same accident, went home from hospital Sunday.
Victoria Branch, British Columbia Historical Association, will be addressed by its president, Dr. Douglas Leechman, Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in the Douglas Cafeteria.
His subject will be "Toujours la Politesse," a discussion of the irrational aspects of human behavior.
John de Bourcier of Vancouver was fined $25 in city police court Saturday for careless driving.
Alt Force Officers' Association will hold its 17th annual meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Officers' Mess, 3 Air Division HQ, 1262 Quadra Street.
Films of the 1961 and 1962 Farnborough air displays will be shown following the meeting.
View Royal Garden Club will hold its annual meeting and election of officers Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Community Hall, 279 Island Highway.
Alan Little will give a demonstration and talk on tree pruning.
Saanich detectives expect to make more arrests in connection with theft of about $800 worth of jewelry and liquor in the municipality Friday night.
So far five arrests have been made.
Juvenile officers suspect nine boys, ranging from 14 to 16, are responsible for the break-ins to private houses.
In each case the houses were ransacked, but no damage was done.

ver, covers most of the province and drives a wedge 600 miles seaward.
Its prime concern is to locate and recover victims of air or marine mishaps, but a fat file of thank-you letters at its Rescue Co-ordination Centre attests the mercy trips its crews undertake at need.
Here are samples:
"... Sincerest thanks and appreciation to you and the 121 Operations staff in arranging to transport the parcel of drugs today. The drugs were required by St. Joseph's Hospital, Comox, for a patient who was dangerously ill, and we were unable to arrange to ship them by any other form of transport in time to save the patient's life."
"... My husband and I would like to thank you very much for flying our son from Terrace to Vancouver. We are very grateful for this act, and wish to advise he is doing well in Vancouver General Hospital."
"... To the officers and men, thanks for their assistance in locating my father, missing on the water Friday and Saturday."

From its co-ordination centre, where calls for help are investigated and acted upon with practised speed, the organization works through aides that range from navy destroyers to cowhands on some remote Chilcotin ranch. But its primary agent is 121 Communications and Rescue Squadron, RCAF, based at Sea Island under Squadron Leader Chris Cooling.
There, on 24-hour standby, squat the specialized aircraft which west coast rescue missions demand. Of these, the two most useful ships are the amphibious Grumman Albatross with 2,850-mile range at cruising speed of 190 mph, and the Vertol H-21 helicopter familiarly known as the "flying banana."
The squadron maintains two of these big choppers. With their twin rotors, each has a maximum "payload" of 4,500 pounds. Fantastically manoeuvrable, they can hover in the depths of a canyon while a hurt man is power-winchd aboard, and have more than once landed on a hospital lawn.
VERSATILE PETS
But pets of the squadron are the broad-winged Albatrosses, which give wilderness rescuers their long arm. Only a near-zero ceiling can keep them grounded. Equipped with variable-pitch propellers, they are scarcely less handy on water than in air, and can be fitted with skis for snow landings.
Each of the two in service at Sea Island is fitted with modern electronic search and navigational gear.
From a False Creek landing, the squadron's marine section, under Flight Sergeant Orville Begley, operates two 40-foot RCAF crash boats rigged for rescue work. Another pair of these fast and seaworthy craft work out of Comox, and a fifth is stationed at Holberg near the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

Known as para-rescue teams, they must be able to drop by parachute to the aid of a hurt man in the grimiest sort of terrain. They are trained in first aid, mountain climbing and wilderness survival, and their equipment includes such items as frogman suits and inflatable rubber dinghies fitted with outboard motors.
From a gear shed stocked with survival equipment, they can drop supplies for a single lost hunter.
At need, the whole complex and rescue machine is no farther away than the nearest telephone, "Aircraft Distress" or "Marine Distress" in an operator's ear means quick connection with the Vancouver co-ordination centre.

BARON JOINS MOUNTIES AT CHEMAINUS
Baron has joined the RCMP.
Lieutenant Governor George Pearkes has given him a new life, away from the city traffic.
Baron is now stationed at Chemoimus.
The three-year-old Boxer dog became a well-known figure around Victoria when his master moved into Government House in 1960.
Why did Mr. Pearkes give him away?
"Well, not for any definite reason," said a Government House official.
"He didn't bite anyone. But he's a good watch dog."

James Bay Golden Age Club will meet Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Niagara Street Hall.
The president of the Social Credit League of B.C., George Hahn, is in hospital today after an appendix operation.
Mr. Hahn, 52, was taken to hospital at Pentiction Friday night when his appendix ruptured.
He is reported in fair condition these days.
He was in Pentiction on a province-wide speaking tour.
Archie Browne of Victoria, first vice-president of the league, will take over Mr. Hahn's duties.
New president of St. Martin-in-the-Fields church choir is Mary Saleh, elected at the recent annual meeting. David Ross is vice-president with Elizabeth Gray, secretary-treasurer. Ada Fox, robe mistress, and Douglas North, librarian.

MLA LOSES BRIEFCASE TO THIEF

The legislative session is starting poorly for Mrs. Lois Haggan, NDP member for Grand Forks-Greenwood riding.
Her briefcase, containing notes and correspondence about the session starting Thursday and her constituency business, was stolen in Vancouver on her way here.
Its contents included an important file on the Sons of Freedom which Mrs. Haggan planned to use during the session.
Her riding is the home of most of the Freedomites in B.C., including those now at large in Vancouver.
Also stolen from her locked car in a department store parking lot were a typewriter and two hats.

New Appeal System Asked By NDP on Compensation

Mr. Strachan

Independent Tribunals Vital Need—Strachan

A major overhaul of the Workmen's Compensation Act with special emphasis on a new appeals system was urged today by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.
Mr. Strachan appeared before the royal commission on workmen's compensation in Victoria Courthouse accompanied by NDP MLAs Arthur J. Turner, Vancouver East, and Rae Eddie, New Westminster, and read a 47-page brief compiled by the three of them on behalf of the official opposition in the B.C. legislature.

The brief was heard by Chief Justice A. C. DesBrisay, the sole commissioner appointed for this purpose by the B.C. government.

INDEPENDENT
Mr. Strachan's main proposal was for a completely new appeal process using independent tribunals appointed by the chief justice.

At present, appeals are heard by the Workmen's Compensation Board itself, which is not independent or impartial, Mr. Strachan said.

He suggested there should be two types of tribunals: one for claim appeals and the other to hear medical appeals.

Mr. Strachan said the onus of proof in appeals should be on the compensation board.

SHOULD SHOW
"It should be required to show beyond a reasonable doubt that a man's disability or death was not due to factors connected with his employment," he said.

The brief also called for an automatic review of the compensation act every four years by a special committee of the legislature.

It suggested revisions in many of the act's present sections, starting with definitions of injuries and liabilities.

"DUCKING OUT"
Some firms are "ducking" the act at present by making injured employees go back to work too soon as "walking wounded," the brief said.

It also asked that commercial fishermen be allowed to qualify.

Increases in compensation and eligibility were also sought.
Mr. Strachan said compensation should be raised from 75 to 85 per cent of wages and there should be no ceiling for eligibility (at present $5,000 a year); the minimum compensation should be raised from $25 to $40 a week; widows' pensions should be increased from $30 to $125 a month and dependents from $35 to $40.

INADEQUATE
Mr. Strachan also said there should be a more realistic "updating" of pensions. The amount of money awarded many years ago could be completely inadequate by today's standards. For example a railway man who lost a leg in 1924 was getting $21.35 a month today.

The brief complained that the present Workmen's Compensation Act attempts to proportion the percentage of the disability between "injury" and what might be termed "natural causes."
"I submit that no person,

Knifing Sprung From Party Joke Man Tells Court

A stag party prank on a prospective bridegroom which ended in two men receiving knife wounds, was described in city police court today.
Robert L. Dunbar, Glen Lake Road, is charged with assaulting Archie Willock, 3134 Cedar Hill, outside a downtown cafe early in the morning of Dec. 22.

He has pleaded not guilty to the charge.
Mr. Willock testified in court he was one of about 18 men who had gone to the Don Mee Restaurant, 538 Fisgard, after a stag party at his house that evening.

The coming marriage of one of their number was being celebrated, he explained.
"To have a little fun with the fellow (the prospective bridegroom) we all went downstairs and left him with the bill," Mr. Willock told the court.

RAIL AND CHAIN
The victim of the prank was unable to leave because of a ball and chain attached to his ankle, he said.

Although the management of the restaurant was aware of the joke, one of the patrons followed the group downstairs to Fisgard Street and accused them of "trying to cheat those Chinks out of their money."

As they were explaining the situation, Mr. Willock testified, Mr. Dunbar, another patron, came downstairs, saying "I haven't had a good fight for a long time."

The accused then slashed at the stomach of Gordon Stewart, 2780 Dean, with a knife. He then chased Mr. Stewart down the street about 50 yards.

What appeared to be a pearl-handled switchblade knife was entered as an exhibit in today's trial.

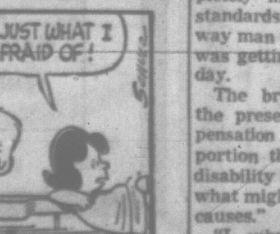

"He cut my hand, but my ribs stopped it going in," Mr. Stewart told the court.

The accused then cut Mr. Willock on the hand and cut through his sweater while slashing at his abdomen, it was testified.

He was finally overpowered and knocked to the ground before police arrived.
The trial still was in progress at press time.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Could you please tell me how old Shirley Temple is now and also how old was she when she played the part in the film, "Poor Little Rich Girl?"
A. Shirley Temple is now 34 years old and was eight years old when she starred in "Poor Little Rich Girl."

Make Coffee a Real Treat Not Just a Bad Habit

By PENNY SAVER

What better way to start the week than with a good cup of coffee? And I want to emphasize the good. With coffee becoming almost a way of life there is a tendency to forget the real flavor of freshly ground coffee beans.

At least once a day a ritual should be performed and real coffee served. The ritual involves the simple European filter method.

All this requires, other than a good blend of fresh coffee, is an earthenware pot, filter funnel, filter papers and boiling water.

To start you making coffee the filter way a coffee pot and filter is being offered free with the purchase of a pound of coffee and three packages of filter papers. Total price is $3.70, quite a saving when you consider that a coffee jug sold separately is regularly $3.95.

Brochure that comes with the free jug lists five advantages in making coffee the filter way.

First, there is more aroma and secondly, it is healthier as the quickfilter retains all the hard-to-digest coffee ingredients.

Third advantage is the convenience since coffee can be served within three minutes from the time the kettle boils — no waiting for the grounds to settle.

It is also economical. Because of the special grind the coffee lasts longer and more flavor is released from every bean.

But Penny's reason is the finished product—a strong rich coffee flavor without any bitterness.

Once you have tasted the real flavor of coffee you will probably become so interested in the business that you will want to own your own grinder.

Three styles of grinders are available in the same store. Two box-style models, made of wood, are priced at $4.95 and $7.95. Each is equipped with a metal drawer and can be adjusted for fine or coarse grinds.

Most attractive is a wall model at $8.95. This is finished in a blue and white delft design.

Treat the family to coffee made the filter way after phoning Penny at 382-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

Don't Forget Your Hair and Skin, If a Beauty 'Mark' You Would Win

In any self-improvement routine which aims at an even prettier you, care of the complexion and hair cannot be overlooked. It is wonderful what daily care of the skin can do for a woman. Our epidermis responds so happily when given a chance. Care of the skin is even more important if you are losing weight, and if you have a dry complexion.

Let us consider the woman who has dry skin first. Daily lubrication is an essential. You just must soak your face and neck for at least 30 minutes each day in a good oily cream! Even if you have normal skin, remember that the natural oils diminish as the years pile up.

The woman who has a dry complexion should use a cleansing cream instead of soap and water. The woman who is reducing and who has a normal epidermis should take special care also. Lubrication of the face and neck are essential. It is also a fine idea to use a body lotion. You must keep your outer coating as pliable as possible so that it can adapt to the loss of weight. It has to shrink!

If you have an oily complexion, soap and water are for you. If it is extremely oily, soap and water several times a day will be beneficial.

You can also use astringents to advantage.

I want to emphasize the fact that any woman who is following my 8-Week (Beauty Improvement Plan BIP) must give her complexion the care it needs every day if she expects to look her best at the end of these eight weeks.

The hair responds almost as readily as the complexion does to regular daily care. It does not matter whether your scalp and hair are oily or dry, daily scalp massage and daily brushing is important.

If you have dry hair, do not shampoo it so often. Perhaps every 10 to 12 days will be sufficient. If your hair is very oily, shampoo it often, at least once a week.

Married in Sidney, Honeymoon in Hawaii

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dalton Wallis King left for a honeymoon in Hawaii after their recent marriage in St. Andrew's Church at Sidney, B.C.

The bride, Constance Pamela, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Cousineau, 2120 McTavish Road, Saanichion. The groom is the son of Mrs. Elenor King, 2164 Oak Bay Avenue, and A.C. D. King, of Vancouver.

White chrysanthemums at the altar and red and white candles and snowdrops in the windows provided church decorations. Canon F. C. Vaughan-Birch officiated at the candle-light ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor-length gown of white-organza. Sequins in floral motifs edged the scooped neckline of the fitted bodice. Sleeves ended in lily points. The full skirt puffed at back in a bustle effect. For "something old" she wore a pearl necklace which belonged to the groom's grandmother, and pearl earrings. Tiara of pearls, crystals and rhinestones held a four-tier bouffant veil.

The bouquet of red roses and white carnations was sent to the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Boyd-Wallis, a patient in Gorge Hospital.

Matron of honor, Mrs. P. Brenton, sister of the bride, and bridesmaid, Miss Jill Cunliffe, wore matching dresses of red velvet with toning bows in their hair. They carried bouquets of red poinsettias.

Cousin of the groom, Donald

Napier, was best man. Ushers were Kent Cunliffe and Brian Palmer.

Vases of red and white carnations flanked the three-tier wedding cake, topped with bells and white doves, which centred the bride's table at a reception and buffet supper at McMorran's Seaview Room, Cordova Bay. George Kraeling's orchestra played for dancing. Fred Smith of Langford proposed the toast.

For a going-away outfit the bride chose a white-wool suit styled with a pleated skirt and box jacket. Black accessories complemented her ensemble.

On return from Hawaii the newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver.

Professor To Speak On Ireland

Dr. Ann Saddlemyer, assistant professor in the department of English of Victoria College, will be guest speaker at meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, to be held in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel Wednesday at 2:45 p.m. Her talk, titled "Facts and Fantasies," will deal with her experiences in Ireland when engaged in research work.

Daughter of a Saskatchewan lawyer, Dr. Saddlemyer obtained her BA in English and psychology at the University of Saskatchewan, MA in English at Queen's University and received her PhD from the University of London in 1961. In the fall of 1959, Dr. Saddlemyer broke into print with her Anglo-Soviet review, "Journey to Moscow." This described her experiences when, as a student, she travelled across Europe to Russia to attend a course in national capital.

Dr. Saddlemyer also assisted in the publication of the bibliography of Synge's works by the library of Trinity College in Dublin, Ireland.

DEAR ABBY...

It Works Two Ways!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column once from a girl who went daffy over a police officer. I can understand it because they all look like a million dollars in their uniforms. But take them out of their uniforms and they are a big nothing. I ought to know. I fell for one of those guys and made a date to meet him off duty. He showed up in an ordinary suit and I was never so disappointed in all my life.

UNIFORM HAPPY. DEAR ABBY: I'll admit that uniforms are disarming. But it works the other way, too. I've heard from men who have fallen for nurses on duty. And when they dated them in their off-duty attire — all the glamor and appeal had gone with the starch.

DEAR ABBY: My mother was left a widow with seven children when I was only 3. She raised us alone (no insurance) and a more unselfish mother never lived. She is now 72. We are all married and are scattered around the country. Mother calls me her "favorite" and "easiest to get along with." She has lived with me since my marriage 14 years ago. Abby—I am not complaining, but my husband and children and I would like to be alone for a while. Just a few weeks. Mother is not a burden, we just need some privacy. The others have invited her to come for vacations (they've offered to pay her fare), but Mother doesn't like to travel. She is in good health. I wouldn't hurt her for the world, but how can I solve this delicate problem?

"THE FAVORITE." DEAR FAVORITE: Write to your sisters and brothers and suggest they coax her in earnest. With their pulling on one end and your encouraging her to go on the other, your chances for a much deserved breather are excellent.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is after me to invite his bosses and their wives to dinner. He thinks the more we see of them socially, the better it will be for him. The few times I have had them to our apartment, I got the impression they didn't want to get too palsy walsy with us, and accepted our invitation only to avoid hurting our feelings. I feel very uncomfortable with them. I would like your opinion of employees who try to socialize with their bosses.

WOMAN'S INTUITION. DEAR INTUITION: If you feel "uncomfortable" in the company of your husband's bosses and their wives, your intuition is probably correct. You should entertain them only to reciprocate THEIR invitations. For a more detailed reply to your very intelligent question, get McCall's February issue and read "How To Help Your Husband Get Ahead." I wrote it.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

The average bridge player divides suits into two classes. Spades and hearts are major suits because 10 tricks make game. Clubs and diamonds are minor suits.

A better division would be into spades and all-other-suits-be-and opening keeps him from making an overtrick, against that lead South must draw three rounds of trumps and eventually will lose two hearts and a club. If the spade suit had not shut West out of his aces, East and West could have bid up to five hearts. They would make it, except against a club opening. This does not mean West should have bid. This time a part overcall would have worked. Next time it might lead to destruction.

'Critic's Choice' Rewards Capacity House at Opener

By AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON

"Critic's Choice" by its title suggests a selection of the best of the best. In the case of the Victoria Theatre Guild's production of "Critic's Choice" at the Langham Court Theatre this week, the selection is a triumph for the Guild.

Some highly commendable performances, an effective and unusual setting and brilliantly witty dialogue—these will be the rewards for playgoers attending the latest Victoria Theatre Guild production at Langham Court Theatre this week.

A capacity first-night audience on Saturday turned the event into a triumph for Cliff Clarke, making his debut with this play as a director of major productions.

As his own set designer he confronted his audience with a remarkably substantial and spacious foyer, two rooms, staircase and mezzanine without inhibiting acting area.

The one flaw, a dominance of white zig-zags in the balustrading, might have been less distracting if the stage had not been indiscriminately flooded with non-subtle illumination.

OLD SAW

"Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone." The old saw might well be applied to "Critic's Choice" as a vehicle. A play so ephemeral in plot and so inept in dramatic construction would have been doomed to quick and eternal eclipse if it were a drama instead of a comedy and if its humor was not so frequently acid and so consistently fresh.

The performance was a bit ponderous during its first third, then improved considerably and really became airborne about the middle.

CHUNKY EFFECT

Everyone seemed to be trying awfully hard and the regrettably necessary frequent blackouts, too long and over-weighted with music, added to the chunky effect.

Central role of the critic faced with the dilemma of attending opening night of his wife's first play, was handled with almost consistent excellence by Richard Litt, an actor possessed of fine presence and outstanding diction.

LACKED CONVICTION

His lapse was in the muddled drunk scene where for the first and only time he lacked conviction, seeming not to have made up his mind how far he should go with it.

Janet Senior as the wife, a talented comedienne of the musical comedy stage, will obviously soon be equally at home on the non-musical.

The artificiality of musical comedy technique showed up here and there but generally the production was a pleasing, lively and sincere one that even managed to probe beneath the superficiality and come up with some dimension.

IDEALLY CAST

Glamorous Margaret Hall, enveloped in mink over cerise satin slims, was radiantly sexy, bandying her lines about like a ping-pong ball. Helen Smith, warm, authoritative, smartly attractive, appeared ideally cast as the sophisticated, sympathetic mother-in-law. Casting was less successful in the instances of Graham Ashworth and Ellis Pryce-Jones, the former appearing too youthful and the latter being inhibited by a voice that does not carry at the present time.

Performances continue nightly throughout the week. Sponsoring tonight's show will be the South Fairfield Group of St. Andrew's Women's Guild, and Tuesday night's, the Solarium Junior League.

3 Years In Jail

QUESNEL (CP) — Donald Albert Kenneally, 24, of Quesnel, was sentenced to three years in jail last week for intent to commit bodily harm. The charge was laid after the May, 1961, stabbing of Pierre Therrien.

UN Explains Mixup

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United Nations last week published a detailed report on the Jadoville mixup, blaming UN occupation of The Congo's Katanga province mining centre on misunderstanding and a "dismaying breakdown" of communications.

REV. LAURA BUTLER "growing interest"

'Criticism Welcomed By Church'

Canadian newspapers and magazines reflect a "growing interest" in the life of the church, said Rev. E. Laura Butler preaching in Metropolitan United Church Sunday morning.

"The church is touching life at more points today than ever before in its history. That is why we are getting more attention in the Press."

Miss Butler said many newspapermen realize that the church is reaching out to meet the current problems of juvenile delinquency, alcoholism, labor unrest and broken marriages.

CRITICS WELCOMED

"At the same time, we welcome criticism. We hope people are dissatisfied with the church. It is right that they should be, for it is only through dissatisfaction that we can continue to grow and develop."

"The church is not a monastery. It is, or should be, a power-house from which we can derive new strength and inspiration."

Miss Butler said statistics show there are now more weddings in church than ever before, but this did not mean there are more Christian marriages.

EDUCATE YOUTH

"There is need for a greater education of our youth in preparation for marriage. This is as important, or more important, than reform of our divorce laws."

It is estimated that $100,000,000 a year will be spent on Canadian university construction between 1960 and 1965.

LEADER HUNTED

Women Arrested In Paintings Theft

CARACAS (AP) — Six young women were arrested Sunday as police spread a dragnet for "The Captain," identified as the leader of pro-Communist terrorists who stole five French masterpieces in a raid on Venezuela's Fine Arts Museum.

The paintings, valued at $50,000, were recovered Saturday night by police who intercepted two university students and a girl companion apparently attempting to return the art works.

The two students were shot and wounded in a free-for-all during which the girl fired six shots, jumped from a viaduct into a small ravine and fled, police said. The students were captured and taken to hospital.

Miguel Arango, director of the museum, disclosed Sunday that three of the paintings had been scratched slightly.

The paintings—works by Gauguin, Braque, Cezanne, Picasso and Van Gogh—were part of a collection insured for $50,000,000 loaned by the French government for showing here.

Kept Money at Home

MADISON, N.C. (AP) — A Madison dentist confirmed Saturday there was $100,000 to $105,000 in a safe stolen from his home. Dr. C. W. McNally, 67, said: "That's not my life savings by any means. I've practised for 40 years and I'm a conservative man. I stay so busy that sometimes I just can't get to the bank. That's how I happened to have so much at home."

Test Ban Hopes Raised As K Allows Inspection

Talks Resume In U.S. Tuesday

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and Russia appear closer to agreement on a nuclear test ban than they have been at any time in almost two years.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev has removed a major barrier to serious negotiation by telling President Kennedy he will accept two or three on-site inspections a year in the Soviet Union as part of a system to prevent cheating.

In an exchange of letters released here and in Moscow Friday night, Kennedy told Khrushchev he was "encouraged that you are prepared to accept the principle of on-site inspections."

The state department said the United States now hopes discussions on the long deadlocked test-ban issue "can be continued to a successful conclusion." Whether it does depends on whether Khrushchev is willing to increase the number of on-site inspections. The U.S. is asking for eight or 10.

Representatives of the three nuclear powers will reopen negotiations in a meeting here Tuesday.

The Kennedy-Khrushchev exchange covers three letters—one from Khrushchev Dec. 19, Kennedy's reply of Dec. 28, and a second Khrushchev message Jan. 7.

COULD BE SERIOUS

Officials here believe there is a strong possibility Khrushchev is reconsidering his relations with the West in the light of his split with Communist China. If this is so, it could mean he is entirely serious about putting an end to nuclear tests and would be prepared to make additional concessions for that purpose.

At the United Nations, diplomats saw encouraging progress in Khrushchev's move.

In Britain, a foreign office spokesman said: "This is obviously an important development, since in particular it accepts the principle of on-site inspections. But, as President Kennedy's answer shows, there are many problems still to be solved."

By Invitation Or Compulsory?

GENEVA (AP)—Diplomats in Geneva noted today that Premier Khrushchev's nuclear test letter to President Kennedy made no mention of a key point—whether the test ban inspections the Soviet leader accepts would be compulsory or by invitation.

These diplomats said the difference had emerged in talks here as the crux of the inspection problem.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin had maintained that his government would accept inspection by invitation, retaining the right to say if and when it could take place. The United States and Britain insisted that inspection must be compulsory.

Diplomats noted that Premier Khrushchev had agreed to the principle of international in-

3 ON-SITE INSPECTIONS RUSS LIMIT

MOSCOW (AP)—Foreign Minister Gromyko told correspondents tonight three on-site inspections are all the Soviet Union can agree to in a nuclear test-ban agreement—and insisted France must come in too.

The Soviet foreign minister reiterated to correspondents what Premier Khrushchev said in his exchange of letters with President Kennedy published here today.

200 Hurt As Trains Collide

PHILADELPHI (AP)—A special Reading Railroad commuter train rammed the back end of a local at a mid-city station today, injuring perhaps 200 persons, most of them slightly.

Reports of the number hurt varied widely. Dr. Savana Brunetti, chief police surgeon, estimated 100 upward. A railroad spokesman said he knew definitely of only 93 actually taken to hospitals for treatment or observation. But checks of hospitals indicated the total might run slightly over 200. A hospital spokesman noted, however, that few were severely hurt. Most suffered cuts and bruises.

Two girls were trapped in a coach, their legs jammed in twisted wreckage, but were freed after about three hours. Eileen Houston, 21, of Philadelphia, and Barbara Flanagan of suburban Wyndmoore, along with Barbara's sister, Maurine, were sitting on a side seat at the end of one of the cars.

Adenauer Backs Britain

PARIS (UPI)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer sought today to save the Brussels Common Market talks from breakdown and to reach a compromise that would enable Great Britain to become a full member of the six-nation group.

Adenauer conferred privately for two-and-a-half hours with French President Charles de Gaulle at the Elysee Palace.

They met just one week after de Gaulle at his news conference announced publicly his opposition to Britain joining the Common Market.

West Germany press chief Karl-Guenther von Hase said after the meeting that de Gaulle's decision "was a sovereign decision for which we were not responsible."

He added: "The German government adheres to the view that full British membership of the Common Market is desirable. It believes a compromise can be worked out in accordance with the Rome Treaty."

The Rome Treaty of March 25, 1957, established the six-nation European Common Market.

The German spokesman insisted there was no direct connection between the Brussels crisis and the present de Gaulle-Adenauer talks, which he emphasized were arranged long ago.

Hase said the main purpose of Adenauer's meeting with de Gaulle is not to discuss the Common Market crisis but to prepare and sign a number of documents which will cement a close new alliance between the two former enemy nations.

Hase said it was not certain whether these would be in the form of protocols or a joint declaration. They will provide for close co-operation in the political, economic, defence and cultural fields.

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—A Nationalist Chinese naval patrol was believed to have sunk a Chinese Red gunboat today in the first sea battle in the Formosa Strait in more than a year, the national defence ministry reported tonight.

Guerrillas Killed

SAIGON (AP)—The South Viet Nam government claimed today that its forces killed 51 Viet Cong guerrillas and captured two in operations over the weekend. Government losses were put at nine killed, 12 missing and 19 wounded.

Charged in Killings

MONTREAL (CP)—Three men were arraigned in Montreal today on charges of capital murder arising from the machine-gun slaying of two policemen during a bank holdup in suburban St. Laurent last month. Charged are Jean-Paul Fournel, 39; George Marcotte, 34, and Jules Reeves, 29.

OTTAWA (CP)—Influential Conservatives, having enlisted majority party support of a policy asking the government to make the decision for or against nuclear arms, were reported today to be pressing for adoption of a special international role for Canada.

The proposed role was privately discussed at the party's national convention, which concluded Saturday. It was part of the campaign waged against a resolution which would have called on the government to accept nuclear arms for Canadian forces in NATO and NORAD if disarmament is not achieved by next December.

JOBLESS INSURANCE CHANGES PLANNED—PM

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will bring in legislation to amend the Unemployment Insurance and Railway Acts, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today in the Commons.

He said the legislation will be based on the recommendations of the Gill commission, in the case of the Unemployment Insurance Act, and on the recommendations of the MacPherson royal commission on transportation in regard to the Railway Act.

Mr. Diefenbaker also said the government wants to introduce a budget earlier than usual and that it proposes that a debate on external affairs and defence policies be held this Thursday and Friday.

This debate would be the first on these subjects at the current session of Parliament which began Sept. 27 and resumed today after an adjournment which began Dec. 20.

FOURTH BODY SOUGHT

Death Toll 3 In Hotel Fire

RCMP today began job of identifying three charred bodies found in the ashes of the Willows Hotel in Camp-disastrous fire.

And at the same time other officers are digging in the ruins of the waterfront hotel to find a fourth body that may be there.

The police don't know yet exactly how many people were in the 56-year-old frame structure when it was razed. At first they thought eight guests might have been trapped in the fire.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Nor do they know the cause of the fire although it seems likely that it was caused by a cigarette.

From the recollection of hotel clerks and guests, police figure 25 people were staying in the 40 rooms. So far only 21 have been accounted for.

Police know the names of the four missing persons. They presume the three bodies found so far are of the missing four. But they don't know which body is which.

The bodies are charred almost beyond recognition. It appears, however, that all were men. The relatives of two of the missing persons know they are relatives of the other missing people have not yet been contacted. Police refused to say if the fourth person, whose body has not yet been found, is a man or woman.

The name of the missing have not been released.

Fire Chief Oscar Thulin, whose great uncle built the Willows in 1908, suspects the fire started either by an electrical fault or a cigarette.

"I am inclined to think it was a cigarette. We have put

French Chair Empty
At European Talks

LUXEMBOURG (Reuters)—France's chair was empty today when high officials from the other five European Common Market countries met here to discuss Britain's application for membership in the European Coal and Steel Community.

A British spokesman here said British delegates would join in the talks either Tuesday or Wednesday.

The members of the Common Market and the Coal and Steel Community are the same—France, West Germany, Luxembourg, Italy, The Netherlands and Belgium.

Observers said today's meeting demonstrated the determination of the five to fight for Britain's entry.

The five were discussing the extent to which the powers of the British National Coal Board are compatible with the Coal and Steel Community Treaty, a spokesman said.

A French spokesman had said earlier France would not be represented at the Luxembourg talks.

Britain Buried Deeper By Icy Winds, Snow

LONDON (CP)—Freezing winds and snow whipped across Britain today, burying the shivering country deeper in one of its worst winters in recorded history.

After almost a month of blizzards, record cold and searching winds, the nation was running short of fuel and electric power. Its railroads were struggling and its road network was in chaos.

More than 100 major highways in 86 of Britain's 86 counties were blocked by snowdrifts and treacherous ice.

Weathermen held out no hope of an early end to the freeze.

The Thames River froze bank to bank at Kingston. It was the first time since 1885 that the river has frozen so far downstream.

THREE FEARED DEAD

Searchers looked for three men feared dead beneath avalanches in the Pennine Hills of northern England.

Snow and ice on runways forced British European airlines to cancel 44 flights out of London Airport Sunday. Trains between London and the suburbs ran hours late.

On the Continent, ice-breakers were smashing their way through ice, breaking up the main shipping lanes open, but several harbors were closed.

In Moscow, the temperature dropped to 18 degrees below zero. It was the Soviet capital's coldest day of the year.

In western Austria a state of emergency was declared when many villages were cut off by snowdrifts. Police said at least four people died from the cold over the weekend.

Dutch troops were flying food to islanders isolated off the north coast. They said one village had been cut off since Friday.

BLIZZARDS EXPECTED

Blizzards were forecast for eastern and northern Sweden as temperatures plunged again today.

Freezing temperatures held the Italian peninsula after a weekend of snow and rain. Four persons died in unrelated homes. Venice's lagoon was frozen over. Icicles formed on Rome's famous fountains. In the Appennines, snowdrifts and landslides left several villages isolated.

In West Germany the temperature dropped to 12 degrees but the day broke clear and sunny.

It was 14 degrees in Copenhagen. Ice-breakers kept the main shipping lanes open, but several harbors were closed.

In Moscow, the temperature dropped to 18 degrees below zero. It was the Soviet capital's coldest day of the year.

Flying Sleuths Boost Odds On Survival in Rugged B.C.

By ARTHUR MAYSE

Wilderness British Columbia can still set lethal traps for the careless or unlucky, but the odds in favor of survival are very much better than they used to be.

Credit for this changed condition goes to a super-sleuthing agency called the RCAF search and rescue organization, which from its Pacific area base in Vancouver, covers most of the province and drives a wedge 600 miles seaward.

Its prime concern is to locate and recover victims of air or marine mishaps, but a fat file of thank-you letters at the Rescue Co-ordination Centre attests the mercy trips its crews undertake at need.

Here are samples:

... Sincerest thanks and appreciation to you and the 121 Operations staff in arranging to transport the parcel of drugs today. The drugs were required by St. Joseph's Hospital, Comox, for a patient who was dangerously ill, and we were unable to arrange to ship them by any other form of transport in time to save the patient's life.

... My husband and I would like to thank you very much for flying our son from Terrace to Vancouver. We are very grateful for this act, and wish to advise he is doing well in Vancouver General Hospital.

... To the officers and men, thanks for their assistance in locating my father, missing on the water Friday and Saturday.

HELPING HANDS

From its co-ordination centre, where calls for help are investigated and acted upon with practised speed, the organization works through aides that range from navy destroyers to cowhands on some remote Chilcotin ranch. But its primary agent is 121 Communications and Rescue Squadron, RCAF, based at Sea Island under Squadron Leader Chris Cooling.

There, on 24-hour standby, squat the specialized aircraft which west coast rescue missions demand. Of these, the two most useful ships are the amphibious Grumman Albatross with 2,850-mile range at cruising speed of 490 mph, and the Vertol H-21 helicopter familiarly known as the "flying banana."

The squadron maintains two of these big choppers. With their twin rotors, each has a maximum "payload" of 4,500 pounds. Fantastically manoeuvrable, they can hover in the depths of a canyon while a hurt man is power-winched aboard, and have more than once landed on a hospital lawn.

VERSATILE PETS

But pets of the squadron are the broad-winged Albatrosses, which give wilderness rescuers their long arm. Only a near-zero ceiling can keep them grounded. Equipped with variable-pitch propellers, they are scarcely less handy on water than in air, and can be fitted with skis for snow landings.

Each of the two in service at Sea Island is fitted with modern electronic search and navigational gear.

From a False Creek landing, the squadron's marine section under Flight Sergeant Orville Begley operates two 40-foot RCAF crash boats rigged for rescue work. Another pair of these fast and seaworthy craft work out of Comox, and a fifth is stationed at Holberg near the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

HAND-PICKED

In an emergency, the squadron can get its aircraft aloft in from five to eight minutes. The men who carry out the rescues—often under conditions of extreme difficulty and hazard—are a picked lot.

Known as para-rescue teams, they must be able to drop by parachute to the aid of a hurt man in the grimmest sort of terrain. They are trained in first aid, mountain climbing and woodsmanship, and their equipment includes such items as frogman suits and inflatable rubber dinghies fitted with outboard motors.

From a gear shed stocked with survival equipment, they can drop supplies for a 10-man camp, or a survival kit for a single lost hunter.

At need, the whole complex and rescue machine is no farther away than the nearest telephone. "Aircrew Distress" in an operator's ear means quick connection with the Vancouver co-ordination centre.

Also, he said, the Canadian federal policy with regard to adaptation of suitable buildings for fallout protection is about to be stepped up.

A provincial civil defence spokesman today said with acceptance of a Vancouver evacuation traffic plan, dispersal routes were being marked by standard signposts.

In Victoria target area planning signs await full preparation of a dispersal plan and distribution to the public, although Oak Bay is ready to erect its own signs any time.

This is in accordance with federal planning on what to do in the event of civil or nuclear emergency.

SIMILAR TO U.S.

But a civil defence spokesman said he expects the federal policy in "six or eight months" to be parallel with United States federal policy.

"We are usually six or eight months behind them," the officer said, noting that the situation across the border now

MONTE ROBERTS

Please forgive me if I am inclined to be snarly, irritable, and generally hard to get along with.

These are very difficult days for an addict like me.

I am going through that hardest of all periods, the withdrawal period.

I started a week ago Sunday, thinking that seven days should make all the difference.

But the craving is still with me, the pangs are almost physical. Tapering off doesn't seem to work, and I lack the courage to face a complete break.

What's that?

Good heavens, no.

I am referring to my addiction to televised football.

A week ago Sunday the last (sob) televised football game of the season appeared on the screen.

It was only an all-star game, and I thought at first I would turn it off at the end of the first quarter, to begin accustoming myself to the lack of football.

But at the end of the first quarter, I happened to be in the kitchen, and when I returned to the living room, the second quarter had started. . . . oh, well, I thought, I can turn it off at halftime.

But at halftime, a neighbor dropped in, complaining bitterly about poor reception on his set, so it wouldn't have been neighborly to turn MY set off, now would it?

Thus my plans for early tapering off were dashed.

On Saturday, I tried again.

I tried to dissipate (is that the right word?) my craving for football by watching (a) golf (b) curling (c) wrestling (d) more golf—on three different channels (e) more wrestling (f) horse racing (g) bowling (h) skiing (i) hockey (j) boxing (k) more—golf (l) more bowling (m) more wrestling.

But it was no use.

Only for brief periods during the hockey game could I forget my loss.

As for Sunday, what could I use as an anodyne for the gnawing at my vitals?

There was nothing in sight but golf, golf and golf (not necessarily in that order), bowling and—horror of horrors—an indoor track meet.

All I could do was stay in bed and cry a lot.

So please forgive me if I am inclined to be snarly.

I'll be all right by next August.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

A car reported stolen in the city at 12:35 a.m. Sunday was spotted in Esquimalt 10 minutes later, but its occupants eluded pursuing police.

Three youths were seen taking the 1951 sedan belonging to Walter Ngai, from in front of his house at 2567 Prior.

Esquimalt police spotted the car parked at Wilson west of Henry. Three occupants of the car fled when police approached, but escaped.

A 16-year-old Vancouver basketball player is reported in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today, following a two-car crash in which he was injured Saturday.

Eric Brynjolfson was a passenger in one of two cars involved in the crash at Lampson and Ellery about 9 a.m.

He had come to Victoria to play in a basketball game.

Eight-year-old Karen Stewart, 709 Connaught, who was hurt in the same accident, went home from hospital Sunday.

Victoria Branch, British Columbia Historical Association, will be addressed by its president, Dr. Douglas Leechman, Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in the Douglas Cafeteria.

His subject will be "Toujours la Politesse," a discussion of the irrational aspects of human behavior.

John de Bourcier of Vancouver was fined $25 in city police court Saturday for careless driving.

Air Force Officers' Association will hold its 17th annual meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Officers' Mess, 5 Air Division HQ, 1212 Quadra Street.

Films of the 1961 and 1962 Farnborough air displays will be shown following the meeting.

View Royal Garden Club will hold its annual meeting and election of officers Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Community Hall, 279 Island Highway.

Alan Litterer will give a demonstration and talk on tree pruning.

Saanich detectives expect to make more arrests in connection with theft of about $800 worth of jewelry and liquor in the municipality Friday night.

So far five arrests have been made.

Juvenile officers suspect nine boys, ranging from 14 to 16, are responsible for the break-ins to private houses.

In each case the houses were ransacked, but no damage was done.

The United States coast guard cutter Sweetbrier will pay an informal visit to Esquimalt Feb. 8 for two days. Commanded by Lt. Cmdr. William G. Dick, the ship carries six officers and 48 enlisted personnel.

The frigate HMCS Ste Threse, a member of the Pacific Command's Fourth Canadian Escort Squadron, has won the command's sonar proficiency award for 1962 with an 85.6 per cent mark in the annual contest.

Runner-up honors went to HMCS Jonquiere and HMCS Antigonish, each with 83.2 per cent.

A public meeting to study prayer and healing will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. in Cathedral Memorial Hall.

An elderly pedestrian knocked down by a car at Fort and Cook Sunday afternoon is reported in good condition today in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mrs. Gertrude Scott, 73, of 750 Fort, was crossing the intersection when she was in collision with a car driven by Russel Knight, 1044 Collinson, about 2:40 p.m.

She suffered leg and hip injuries.

James Bay Golden Age Club will meet Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Niagara Street Hall.

The president of the Social Credit League of B.C., George Hahn, is in hospital today after an appendix operation.

Mr. Hahn, 52, was taken to hospital at Penticton Friday night when his appendix ruptured.

He is reported in fair condition there today.

He was in Penticton on a province-wide speaking tour.

Archie Browne of Victoria, first vice-president of the league, will take over Mr. Hahn's duties.

New president of St. Martin-in-the-Fields church choir is Mary Saleh, elected at the recent annual meeting. David Ross is vice-president with Elizabeth Gray, secretary-treasurer; Ada Fox, robe mistress, and Douglas North, librarian.

MLA LOSES BRIEFCASE TO THIEF

The legislative session is starting poorly for Mrs. Lois Haggan, NDP member for Grand Forks-Greenwood riding.

Her briefcase, containing notes and correspondence about the session starting Thursday and her constituency business, was stolen in Vancouver on her way here.

Its contents included an important file on the Sons of Freedom which Mrs. Haggan planned to use during the session.

Her riding is the home of most of the Freedomites in B.C., including those now at large in Vancouver.

Also stolen from her locked car in a department store parking lot were a typewriter and two hats.

New MLA Takes Oath

Mrs. Hobbs came to Victoria today to carry on her husband's job.

She was sworn in as a member of the legislature for Revelstoke by clerk of the house E. K. DeBeck.

Margaret Hobbs was elected a New Democratic MLA last Sept. 4 in a byelection.

Her husband, George, died of a heart attack during last year's session of the legislature.

There is one other new member to be sworn in for the session which starts Thursday at 3 p.m. He is Liberal Dr. Pat McGeer, who won a byelection in Vancouver Point Grey Dec. 17, replacing Social Credit Mrs. Buda Brown, who died in August.

Mr. DeBeck said Dr. McGeer's swearing in will be Thursday morning.

CD Officials Hold To Evacuation Plan

Local civil defence planning is relatively static as far as evacuation is concerned.

Also, he said, the Canadian federal policy with regard to adaptation of suitable buildings for fallout protection is about to be stepped up.

A provincial civil defence spokesman today said with acceptance of a Vancouver evacuation traffic plan, dispersal routes were being marked by standard signposts.

In Victoria target area planning signs await full preparation of a dispersal plan and distribution to the public, although Oak Bay is ready to erect its own signs any time.

New Appeal System Asked By NDP on Compensation

HEADLINING stage entertainment during the Victoria Auto Show in Memorial Arena next week will be singer Shirley Harmer. Stage shows will be held at 3:15, 7:15 and 10:15 p.m. daily during the Victoria Automobile Dealers' Association exhibition Jan. 29 to Feb. 2. Miss Harmer, a CBC radio and TV personality who also has appeared at night clubs in Canada and the United States, will be backed up by the seven-girl Mallopie Dancers precision troupe.

Independent Tribunals Vital Need—Strachan

A major overhaul of the Workmen's Compensation Act with special emphasis on a new appeals system was urged today by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

Mr. Strachan appeared before the royal commission on workmen's compensation in Victoria Courthouse accompanied by NDP MLAs Arthur J. Turner, Vancouver East, and Rae Eddie, New Westminster, and read a 47-page brief compiled by the three of them on behalf of the official opposition in the B.C. legislature.

The brief was heard by Chief Justice A. C. DesBrisay, the sole commissioner appointed for this purpose by the B.C. government.

INDEPENDENT

Mr. Strachan's main proposal was for a completely new appeal process using independent tribunals appointed by the chief justice.

At present, appeals are heard by the Workmen's Compensation Board itself, which is not independent or impartial, Mr. Strachan said.

He suggested there should be two types of tribunal: one for claim appeals and the other to hear medical appeals.

Mr. Strachan said the onus of proof in appeals should be on the compensation board.

SHOULD SHOW

"It should be required to show beyond a reasonable doubt that a man's disability or death was not due to factors connected with his employment," he said.

The brief also called for an automatic review of the compensation act every four years by a special committee of the legislature.

It suggested revisions in many of the act's present sections, starting with definitions of injuries and liabilities.

"DUCKING OUT"

Some firms are "ducking" the act at present by making injured employees go back to work too soon as "walking wounded," the brief said.

It also asked that commercial fishermen be allowed to qualify.

Increases in compensation and eligibility were also sought.

Mr. Strachan said compensation should be raised from 75 to 85 per cent of wages and there should be no ceiling for eligibility (at present $5,000 a year); the minimum compensation should be raised from $25 to $40 a week; widows' pensions should be increased from $80 to $125 a month and dependents from $35 to $40.

INADEQUATE

Mr. Strachan also said there should be a more realistic "up-dating" of pensions. The amount of money awarded many years ago could be completely inadequate by today's standards. For example a railway man who lost a leg in 1924 was getting $21.95 a month today.

The brief complained that the present Workmen's Compensation Act attempts to proportion the percentage of the disability between "injury" and what might be termed "natural causes."

"I submit that no person,

Knifing Sprung From Party Joke Man Tells Court

A stag-party prank on a prospective bridegroom which ended in two men receiving knife wounds, was described in city police court today.

Robert L. Dunbar, Glen Lake Road, is charged with assaulting Archie Willock, 3134 Cedar Hill, outside a downtown cafe early in the morning of Dec. 22.

He has pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Mr. Willock testified in court he was one of about 18 men who had gone to the Don Mee Restaurant, 538 Flaggard, after a stag party at his house that evening.

The coming marriage of one of their number was being celebrated, he explained.

"To have a little fun with the fellow (the prospective bridegroom) we all went downstairs and left him with the bill," Willock told the court.

BALL AND CHAIN

The victim of the prank was unable to leave because of a ball and chain attached to his ankle, he said.

Although the management of the restaurant was aware of the joke, one of the patrons followed the group downstairs to Flaggard Street and accused them of "trying to cheat those Chinks out of their money."

As they were explaining the situation, Mr. Willock testified, Dunbar, another patron, came downstairs, saying "I haven't haven't had a good fight for a long time."

The accused then slashed at the stomach of Gordon Stewart, 2780 Dean, with a knife. He then chased Mr. Stewart down the street about 50 yards.

What appeared to be a pearl-handled switch-blade knife was entered as an exhibit in today's trial.

"He cut my hand, but my ribs stopped it going in," Mr. Stewart told the court.

The accused then cut Mr. Willock on the hand and cut through his sweater while slashing at his abdomen, it was testified.

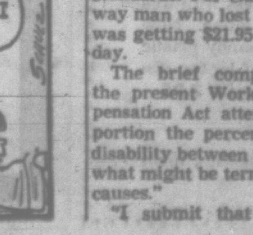

He was finally overpowered and knocked to the ground before police arrived.

The trial still was in progress at press time.

MONTREAL (UPI) — Fire today swept through a three-story tenement building in east-end Montreal. Police said two children were killed and a woman believed to be their mother hospitalized.

Thousands Made Homeless by Floods

KUCHING, Sarawak (AP) — The worst floods in this British territory's history have left thousands homeless and taken at least nine lives in northeast and eastern Sarawak, officials said today. Among the dead was a British soldier drowned on a rescue mission.

NHL Teams Aid Smoke Eaters

TRAIL (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters, in need of money to finance their trip to the world hockey championships, said today they are getting some help from their big brothers in the National Hockey League — the Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens. James Cameron, donations chairman for the Trail club, said the two NHL teams have donated $1,000 each toward Smoke's expenses.

Canadiens Call Up Berenson

MONTREAL (UPI) — The injury-riddled Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League today recalled Gordon (Red) Berenson from Hull-Ottawa of the Eastern pro league for their crucial game against the Maple Leafs in Toronto Wednesday.

ACCEPTS INSPECTION

Nikita Raises Test Ban Hopes

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, Britain and Russia appear closer to agreement on a nuclear test ban than they have been at any time in almost two years.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev has removed a major barrier to serious negotiation by telling President Kennedy he will accept two or three on-site inspections a year in the Soviet Union as part of a system to prevent cheating.

In an exchange of letters released here and in Moscow Friday night, Kennedy told Khrushchev he was "encouraged that you are prepared to accept the principle of on-site inspections."

The state department said the United States now hopes discussions on the long deadlocked test-ban issue "can be continued to a successful conclusion." Whether it does depends on whether Khrushchev is willing to increase the number of on-site inspections. The U.S. is asking for eight or 10.

Representatives of the three nuclear power will reopen negotiations in a meeting here Tuesday.

The Kennedy-Khrushchev exchange covers three letters — one from Khrushchev Dec. 19, Kennedy's reply of Dec. 23, and a second Khrushchev message Jan. 7.

COULD BE SERIOUS

Officials here believe there is a strong possibility Khrushchev is reconsidering his relations with the West in the light of his split with Communist China. If this is so, it could mean he is entirely serious about putting an end to nuclear tests and would be prepared to make additional concessions for that purpose.

At the United Nations, diplomats saw encouraging progress in Khrushchev's move.

In Britain, a foreign office spokesman said: "This is obviously an important development, since in particular it accepts the principle of on-site inspections. But, as President Kennedy's answer shows, there are many problems still to be solved."

By Invitation Or Compulsory?

GENEVA (AP) — Diplomats in Geneva noted today that Premier Khrushchev's nuclear test letter to President Kennedy made no mention of a key point — whether the test ban inspections would be compulsory or by invitation.

These diplomats said the difference had emerged in talks here as the crux of the inspection problem.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarupkin had maintained that his government would accept inspection by invitation, retaining the right to say if and when it could take place. The United States and Britain insisted that inspection must be compulsory.

Diplomats noted that Premier Khrushchev had agreed to the principle of international inspection several times in the last few years.

In 1960 the Soviets offered the West the right to three annual inspections on its own soil, but withdrew the offer in November, 1961 after they started a massive series of atmospheric nuclear tests.

In revived talks last year, neutralist countries proposed the compromise idea of invitation inspection and Russia immediately accepted this as the sole basis of negotiation.

Adenauer Backs Britain

PARIS (UPI) — West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer sought today to save the Brussels Common Market talks from breakdown and to reach a compromise that would enable Great Britain to become a full member of the six-nation group.

Adenauer conferred privately for two-and-a-half hours with French President Charles de Gaulle at the Elysee Palace.

They met just one week after de Gaulle at his news conference announced publicly his opposition to Britain joining the Common Market.

SOVEREIGN

West Germany press chief Karl-Guenther von Hase said after the meeting that de Gaulle's decision "was a sovereign decision for which we were not responsible."

He added "The German government adheres to the view that full British membership of the Common Market is desirable. It believes a compromise can be worked out in accordance with the Rome Treaty."

The Rome Treaty of March 25, 1957, established the six-nation European Common Market.

The German spokesman insisted there was no direct connection between the Brussels crisis and the present de Gaulle.

200 Hurt As Trains Collide

PHILADELPHI (AP) — A special Reading Railroad commuter train rammed the back end of a local at a mid-city station today, injuring perhaps 200 persons, most of them slightly.

Reports of the number hurt varied widely.

Dr. Savana Brunetti, chief police surgeon, estimated 100 upward. A railroad spokesman said he knew definitely of only 93 actually taken to hospitals for treatment or observation.

But checks of hospitals indicated the total might run slightly over 200. A hospital spokesman noted, however, that few were severely hurt. Most suffered cuts and bruises.

Two girls were trapped in a coach, their legs jammed in twisted wreckage, but were freed after about three hours.

Eileen Houston, 21, of Philadelphia, and Barbara Flanagan of suburban Wyndmoore, along with Barbara's sister, Maurine, were sitting on a side seat at the end of one of the cars.

Bennett Plans To See Queen

Premier Bennett will go with Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes to meet the Queen in Vancouver Jan. 31.

The Queen and Prince Philip will stop over at the airport for an hour while the aircraft taking them from London to Australia is refuelled.

A Government House spokesman said today it is possible the royal couple may leave the plane if there is a large crowd and fine weather.

SEAMAN RESCUED

Crewman of the Lebanese freighter Alforis was brought ashore in breeches buoy Sunday after 4,000-ton ship ran aground in blizzard at entrance to Tyne River in England. The captain strides through surf in foreground. Twenty-two aboard were rescued in 80-mile-an-hour gale.

Britain Buried Deeper By Icy Winds, Snow

LONDON (CP) — Freezing winds and snow whipped across Britain today, burying the shivering country deeper in one of its worst winters in recorded history.

After almost a month of blizzards, record cold and searching winds, the nation was running short of fuel and electric power. Its railroads were struggling and its road network was in chaos.

More than 100 major highways in 80 of Britain's 86 counties were blocked by snowdrifts and treacherous ice.

Weathermen held out no hope of an early end to the freeze.

The Thames River froze bank to bank at Kingston. It was the first time since 1895 that the river has frozen so far downstream.

THREE FEARED DEAD

Searchers looked for three men feared dead beneath avalanches in the Pennine Hills of northern England.

Snow and ice on runways forced British European airlines to cancel 44 flights out of London Airport Sunday. Trains between London and the suburbs ran hours late.

On the Continent, ice-breakers were smashing their way to isolated islands in Scandinavia, and troops were called out to aid isolated villages in Austria and Holland today.

In western Austria a state of emergency was declared when many villages were cut off by snowstorms. Police said at least four people died from the cold over the weekend.

Dutch troops were flying food to islanders isolated off the north coast. They said one village had been cut off since Friday.

BLIZZARDS EXPECTED

Blizzards were forecast for eastern and northern Sweden as temperatures plunged again today.

Freezing temperatures held the Italian peninsula after a weekend of snow and rain. Four persons died in unheated homes. Venice's lagoon was frozen over. Icicles formed on Rome's famous fountains. In the Apennines, snowdrifts and landslides left several villages isolated.

In West Germany the temperature dropped to 12 degrees but the day broke clear and sunny.

Commons Told Of Nassau Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today the whole future shape and direction of the NATO alliance is under review in the NATO council as a result of the Kennedy-Macmillan Nassau pact.

THREE DEAD

Identity Problem In Fire

RCMP today began job of identifying three charred bodies found in the ashes of the Willows Hotel in Campbell River after Saturday's disastrous fire.

And at the same time other officers are digging in the ruins of the waterfront hotel to find a fourth body that may be there.

The police don't know yet exactly how many people were in the 56-year-old frame structure when it was razed. At first they thought eight guests might have been trapped in the fire.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Nor do they know the cause of the fire although it seems likely that it was caused by a cigarette.

From the recollection of hotel clerks and guests, police figure 25 people were staying in the 40 rooms. So far only 21 have been accounted for.

Police know the names of the four missing persons. They presume the three bodies found so far are of the missing four. But they don't know which body is which.

The bodies are charred almost beyond recognition. It appears, however, that all were men. The relatives of two of the missing persons know they are missing.

The relatives of the other missing people have not yet been contacted. Police refused to say if the fourth person, whose body has not yet been found, is a man or woman.

The name of the missing have not been released.

Fire Chief Oscar Thulin, whose great uncle built the Willows in 1908, suspects the fire started either by an electrical fault or a cigarette.

"I am inclined to think it was a cigarette. We have put out a search party."

Trekking Sons Reach Vancouver Impasse

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Doukhobor problem in Vancouver reached an impasse during the weekend.

A delegation of Sons of Freedom members issued a statement that they would stay in the city until Attorney-General Robert Bonner talks with them.

Attorney-General Bonner issued a statement saying in effect — "that's a good idea — stay right there." But he wouldn't talk with them.

The Sons have been scattered all over town since arriving here last Wednesday from Hope, B.C., on their trek which began 400 miles to the east in the Kootenay valley Sept. 2.

Mayor Bill Rathie said recently he wants them to leave "and the sooner the better."

But Sunday the Sons of Freedom delegation stated they would remain until Mr. Bonner speaks to them.

Mr. Bonner said it would be wise if the Doukhobors did stay because "it's the best place for them to begin their integration — in the midst of a large Canadian community."

If they locate, they become residents eligible for social welfare cheques.

"I am normally delighted to meet people," the attorney-general said.

"But I have nothing to say to these people."
